Police Powers For Highway Patrol Asked

Another Bill In Ohio Assembly Would Force Auto Driver Training

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Highway Patrol, nearing its quarter-century mark, may be on its way to becoming the "Ohio State Police."

The Ohio Senate received a bill Monday night to confer full police powers on the patrol. It was offered by Sen. Robert R. Shaw (R-Franklin).

His proposal followed by only a week an admission by Gov. C. William O'Neill that he has been studying the plight the patrol faces with only limited powers.

The Legislative Service Commission, a research arm of the Legislature, recently authorized a study of a proposal to give the patrol police powers in cases of emergencies declared by the governor.

The Shaw proposal would eliminate from the present law a prohibition against patrol interference in labor disputes.

THE STATE patrol, under present law, is limited to the enforcement of laws covering motor vehicles and highways.

Last Dec. 16, extra patrolmen guarding against violence in the southern Ohio telephone strike, had no choice but to stand inactive while a group of strike sympathizers stoned several exchanges of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. in the Portsmouth area.

Shaw commented: "We are losing a lot of potential of well-trained organization when in some parts of the state local law enforcement is breaking down."

He obviously referred to the situation in the Portsmouth area. But he admitted he could not say whether he has administration backing.

Another bill introduced Monday night would require one year of driver education in Ohio's 1,111

Nurses' Prank Proves Fatal To Student

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—A tragic "prank" which led to the fatal burning of one student nurse and serious injury to another was blamed on two registered nurses Monday night.

Fire Chief Earl McDaniel said Margaret R. Donovan, 24, and Mary Frances Hutchinson, 26, both of Lexington, admitted in signed statements they doused two student nurses with half a pint of ether.

One of the nurses was smoking a cigarette. A fire resulted.

Kathleen Oehler, 19, of Frankfort, died Sunday night and the other student, 23-year-old Charlotte Smith of Danville, is still on the serious list at St. Joseph's Hospital, where the incident occurred last week.

McDaniel said officials will confer today on the possibility of filing charges against the two.

McDaniel said Miss Donovan and Miss Hutchinson told him ether-throwing was a "nurses' prank" which had been done by others before "to make them jump." Ether feels extremely cold when in contact with the skin.

The fire chief said Miss Hutchinson admitted pouring ether in Miss Oehler's lap and Miss Donovan poured it on Miss Smith without realizing she was smoking a cigarette.

He quoted the nurses as saying Miss Smith "almost instantly went up in flames." The fire spread quickly to Miss Oehler.

Boy 'Hero,' 3 Pals Admit Church Fire

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 13-year-old boy, who turned in the alarm, and three youthful companions have admitted starting a fire Sunday night at the Asbury Third Methodist Church here which caused an estimated $50,000 damage.

Fire Capt. James Hassett said the four boys have been turned over to juvenile authorities. Two of the lads are 12 years old and the fourth is 14.

Although the boy who turned in the alarm at first was praised by authorities, firemen said they became suspicious of his story.

'Mad Bomber' Admits Crimes

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP)—A clean-cut looking man in a blue suit told calmly today of 25 years of suffering and of hatred boiling up inside him. Then he said he is New York's "mad bomber."

George Metesky is his name. He's 53 and gray-haired. He said he made a vow a long time ago to go on planting bombs in New York until he either got caught or died.

"This is the man," said New York Deputy Police Commissioner Walter Arm. "We know by his admissions. Secondly, we know him by his handwriting."

Charged with being a fugitive, Metesky waived extradition in a special city court session. New York police said he would be held here, under $100,000 bond, until warrants arrive from New York.

Arm said Metesky signed a written statement saying he is the man who, because he felt he got a raw deal from the company he used to work for, planted at least 32 bombs in public places in New York City since 1941.

SEVERAL OF the bombs exploded. The toll: 15 persons injured, none seriously.

Arm quoted him as saying he never meant to kill anyone. The commissioner added that Metesky said he planted bombs in New York "whenever he felt like it."

In his gold-rimmed eyeglasses, Metesky could well have passed for a school teacher as he went over each bombing one by one in all night questioning.

Arm said Metesky held a year-long grudge against the Consolidated Edison Co. of New York.

Metesky said he contracted pulmonary tuberculosis after he was gassed while working at the firm's Hell Gate plant in New York in 1931. He claimed the company refused to take care of him and that was the reason he planted the homemade bombs, Arm said.

Among the first bombs to explode were some on Consolidated Edison property. The bombings date back to 1940, police said. Metesky was placed on company compensation roles in 1941.

Police have said letters accompanied many of the bombs, mostly the pipe variety with a cheap watch for the timing mechanism.

The letters complained the "Mad Bomber" never was compensated for his crippling injuries.

They were signed "F. P." Arm quoted Metesky as saying "F. P." stood for "fair play."

Arm said Metesky told him he never purchased any of his bomb materials in Waterbury. For each bomb, Arm said, Metesky went to a different store, some in New York others in Bridgeport and towns along the way.

He said Metesky purchased bullets and took the powder from them to get the explosives for his missiles.

Many of his unexploded bombs were wrapped in socks.

Rain Is Seen As Prelude To More Winter

COLUMBUS (AP)—Most Ohio highways are wet today, the state highway department reported.

Otherwise, driving conditions on the state's major thoroughfares, including the Ohio Turnpike, are normal, the department's early weather bulletin said.

But the weather bureau has indicated that today's dismal overcast is but a prelude to another round of winter.

Wintry weather moved into the central part of the country and chilled Western areas, is heading toward the eastern third of the country.

Rain or snow fell in many sections. Rain extended over the Gulf states. Wet weather was reported from the upper Mississippi Valley westward across the Northern Plains into the Rockies and in the Pacific Northwest. Heavy rain hit sections from the southern tip of Lake Michigan southward into the lower Mississippi Valley.

Cold air headed into the Great Lakes region, the middle Mississippi Valley and the Southern Plains. It was below zero from Montana eastward across the northern Plains, with readings ranging from -10 to -20.

In contrast to the cold weather in the Midwest, temperatures were in the 40s and 50s from the lower Great Lakes to the Atlantic and in the upper 60s along the Gulf Coast.

Policeman's Son Given Sentence

CLEVELAND (AP)—A police lieutenant's son, on trial for second degree murder, suddenly pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of manslaughter Monday and was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Ohio Reformatory.

Common pleas Judge Daniel H. Wasserman said Warren R. Bayless, 20, missed getting a penitentiary sentence only because of his age. The defendant, son of Lt. Norman Bayless, was charged with the fatal stabbing of Joseph Wolford, 20, of Mentor Nov. 14.

Ike Returns To His Job As Festivities End

President, First Lady Take In All Four Gala Inauguration Dances

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's back to business as usual today for President Eisenhower after a brilliant inaugural celebration, crowned by appearance at four gay, diamond-studded galas honoring the start of his second term.

They kept him on the go until nearly 1 a. m. and he seemed to enjoy every minute.

With his lady on his arm, he left the White House soon after 10 o'clock, started at the Washington Armory and showed up at three hotels in the next 2½ hours.

Dance orchestras played, colors were trooped, thousands of people promenaded past the presidential boxes, and celebrated singers gave their all with everything from the National Anthem to "The Blue Danube" and "Mr. Wonderful."

The President was a picture of perpetual motion.

He bowed, waved, smiled, bobbed up and down from the chairs, gave one-and two-handed salutes to acquaintances, had at least one deep conversation.

THAT WAS with Secretary of State Dulles, one of his guests in the presidential box at the Statler Hotel. They put their heads together and talked intently, apparently oblivious of the cyclone of sound and color around them.

Vice President and Mrs. Nixon also made the circuit of the celebrations. Cabinet members were divided among the four affairs.

Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, and his wife Barbara were with the President. The major wore his Army dress uniform of dark blue.

At one of the last stops along the route, Mrs. Eisenhower told friends, "We've just had a lovely party." The President, sipping tomato juice, added, "In fact, everywhere."

They all returned to the White House at 12:42 a. m.

The President also told friends Monday's inaugural parade was "the best parade I've ever seen." He described it as "less of the strolling kind of thing."

Four years ago, at his first inauguration, the big procession kept him in the reviewing stand until well after darkness fell.

Monday, a shorter army of marchers moved smartly.

Standing near the presidential reviewing stand were two men who played vital roles in Eisenhower's life recently.

One was Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist who supervised treatment when Eisenhower was stricken in 1955. The other was Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton who operated on him after an attack of ileitis nine months later.

White reported that the President "apparently is in excellent health" now.

Judge Dismisses Pike Indictment

WAVERLY (AP)—Franklin County Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds has dismissed a local perjury indictment against a Lancaster real estate dealer.

The dealer, Clifford C. Robinette, was indicted last March by the Pike County grand jury in connection with an investigation of controversy over selection of a site for a residential subdivision near the Pike County atomic energy plant. The jury charged that Robinette lied on two counts in testimony before the jury.

Judge Reynolds, who heard the case on assignment, ruled that the jury had overstepped its authority.

Alcorn, Eisenhower's Choice, Elected As New GOP Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—H. Meade Alcorn Jr. of Connecticut today was unanimously elected Republican national chairman. President Eisenhower had named him as his choice.

Alcorn was chosen by the committee on motion of L. Judson Morhouse, New York state chairman.

Harry Darby of Kansas, chairman of a subcommittee which conferred with Eisenhower at the White House, had just reported that Eisenhower "would like it very much" if Alcorn was elected to succeed retiring Chairman Leonard W. Hall.

Alcorn, 49, has been a member of the committee about four years. He was chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower organization in Connecticut in 1952.

Hall has presented his resignation to the committee effective Feb. 1.

Alcorn, his state's national committeeman, directed arrangements for last year's national convention.

Others mentioned as possible choices included former Sen. Harry Darby of Kansas; Ray C. Bliss, Ohio state chairman; L. Judson Morhouse, New York state chairman; former Gov. Howard Pyle of Arizona, now a presidential assistant; Ted Dalton, Virginia committeeman; and Louis Nunn, Lexington, Ky., who managed the successful GOP campaign in Kentucky last year.

Court Order Against Union Still In Effect

A temporary injunction granted against local union members of the Communications Workers of America last November has been made permanent. The ruling was by Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Ohio Consolidated Telephone officials asked for the injunction on contentions that striking union members were conducting unfair picketing practices and engaging in acts of violence at the Circleville exchange.

Terms of the latest court order are the same as those of the temporary injunction. The order provides that picketing at the local exchange will be limited to two union members at each door and that the strike will be conducted in an orderly manner.

The ruling stated that there has been no outward acts of violence since the temporary injunction was issued last November.

IN ALLOWING the injunction to stand, the court felt that it was for the better interests of the general public.

The order went on to say that such a ruling would serve to protect property of the plaintiff and also insure at least a minimum quantity and quality of phone service here.

Bulgarian Forced To Trim Expansion

VIENNA (AP)—Communist satellite Bulgaria, like its master Russia, is having to cut back its too-ambitious five-year plan.

The government-controlled Radio Sofia said today that the plan was falling because of shortages of money and raw material.

Telephone Firm Is Accused Of Hiring Roughhouse Crew

PORTSMOUTH (AP)—Two men testified before the National Labor Relations Board that they were ordered by officials of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. to get four union leaders "out of the picture." It was denied by the company today.

Company charges of unfair labor practices against the union are the subject of the hearing, underway here for several days. The Communications Workers of America union has been on strike against the company since last July 15.

The witnesses, James R. Tindal and William Kerr of New Castle, Pa., testified they were hired by the company last Sept. 1 to investigate cable cuttings and other vandalism.

Tindal testified that an Ohio Consolidated official instructed

Tindal and four others hired by the company "to get any one of four union leaders out of the way by any means we saw fit."

"We might run them down in an automobile or run them off the road," Tindal testified.

He told the board a company official expressed belief that if any one of four top union officials were removed from the picture "the strike would disintegrate immediately."

Tindal and Kerr further testified they were unable to find who was responsible for vandalism.

After the hearing, the company issued this statement:

"The trumped up charges obviously were manufactured and will delude no one.

"They are so absurd as to insult the intelligence of any thinking person. The company will not submit to this sort of libelous attack and will promptly take appropriate action."

Tindal also testified that he and four other men were dismissed after working four days.

He testified a company official said "we were of no further use to him because our work was confined to surveillance and investigation and that what he wanted done was to get any one or all of these men out of the way."

Polish Reds Chalk Up Only Slight Margin

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Stockholm paper Expressen, reported today the Polish Communists won only a 13-seat majority in the new Polish parliament.

Official results are to be announced Wednesday.

The United Workers (Communist) party now headed by Wladyslaw Gomulka had a majority of 121 seats in the outgoing parliament. The Communists were prepared to accept a decline of 50 or so seats in the interests of broadening the governmental base.

There is no question of Gomulka and the Communists not controlling the new parliament. Candidates from the fellow-traveling Democratic and United Peasant parties and independents whose names were placed on the single election list of the Communist-headed national front all were pledged to follow the Red policies.

Expressen's Berlin correspondent, D. M. Winther, reported from Warsaw that, of 459 seats in the new parliament, the Communists in the voting Sunday won 236, the United Peasants 116, the Democratic party 39 and independents 67. One seat still was undecided.

8 Oklahomans Killed; School Children Said Missing In Louisiana

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Freak tornadoes, believed created by a new cold wave sweeping into the mid-continent from the Northwest, today left at least nine dead and a score injured.

Several school children in Louisiana are missing.

Eight persons in the tiny community of Gans, Okla., were killed when one out-of-season tornado smashed into that tiny farming community.

Two families were hardest hit, one counting four dead and the other three. At least a dozen other Gans residents were injured.

Another tornado struck near Princeton, La., killing at least one person and injuring a number of others.

Reports to the Shreveport Journal from the area said the twister struck a group of school children and several of them were missing.

Some of the injured were taken to a hospital at Minden and others to a Shreveport hospital.

Princeton is 18 miles east of Shreveport.

Two other twisters struck in eastern Oklahoma, destroying some property but there were no casualties.

The National Guard, highway patrol and county officers rushed to Gans, which has a population of about 600.

Six houses were demolished including those of the victims who were still sleeping when the twister swooped down through heavy-laden clouds.

A tornado forecast has been issued for the area by the U. S. Weather Bureau as a cold front from the Northwest swept into Oklahoma. Monday record highs in the 70s for this time of year were reported.

THE TWO OTHER TORNADOES were at Warner and Wewoka.

FREAK TORNADOES STRIKE 2 STATES

WHILE ISRAEL'S MALE SOLDIERS are busy manning positions against surprise attack, and others are waiting to withdraw from the occupied Sinai Peninsula, women are training to take their own places in front-line activities. Court Order Against Union Still In Effect

A temporary injunction granted against local union members of the Communications Workers of America last November has been made permanent. The ruling was by Pickaway County Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

Ohio Consolidated Telephone officials asked for the injunction on contentions that striking union members were conducting unfair picketing practices and engaging in acts of violence at the Circleville exchange.

Terms of the latest court order are the same as those of the temporary injunction. The order provides that picketing at the local exchange will be limited to two union members at each door and that the strike will be conducted in an orderly manner.

The ruling stated that there has been no outward acts of violence since the temporary injunction was issued last November.

IN ALLOWING the injunction to stand, the court felt that it was for the better interests of the general public.

The order went on to say that such a ruling would serve to protect property of the plaintiff and also insure at least a minimum quantity and quality of phone service here.

Bulgarian Forced To Trim Expansion

VIENNA (P)—Communist satellite Bulgaria, like its master Russia, is having to cut back its too-ambitious five-year plan.

The government-controlled Radio Sofia said today that the plan was failing because of shortages of money and raw material.

Telephone Firm Is Accused Of Hiring Roughhouse Crew

PORTSMOUTH (P)—Two men testified before the National Labor Relations Board that they were ordered by officials of the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. to get four union leaders "out of the picture." It was denied by the company today.

Company charges of unfair labor practices against the union are the subject of the hearing, underway here for several days. The Communications Workers of America union has been on strike against the company since last July 15.

The witnesses, James R. Tindal and William Kerr of New Castle, Pa., testified they were hired by the company last Sept. 1 to investigate cable cuttings and other vandalism.

Tindal testified that an Ohio Consolidated official instructed

Tindal and four others hired by the company "to get any one of four union leaders out of the way by any means we saw fit."

"We might run them down in an automobile or run them off the road," Tindal testified.

He told the board a company official expressed belief that if any one of four top union officials were removed from the picture "the strike would disintegrate immediately."

Tindal and Kerr further testified they were unable to find who was responsible for vandalism.

After the hearing, the company issued this statement:

"The trumped up charges obviously were manufactured and will delude no one.

Tindal also testified that he and four other men were dismissed after working four days.

He testified a company official said "we were of no further use to him because our work was confined to surveillance and investigation and that what he wanted done was to get any one or all of these men out of the way."

Polish Reds Chalk Up Only Slight Margin

STOCKHOLM (P)—The Stockholm paper Express, reported today the Polish Communists won only a 13-seat majority in the new Polish parliament.

Official results are to be announced Wednesday.

The United Workers (Communist) party now headed by Wladyslaw Gomulka had a majority of 121 seats in the outgoing parliament. The Communists were prepared to accept a decline of 50 or so seats in the interests of broadening the governmental base.

There is no question of Gomulka and the Communists not controlling the new parliament. Candidates from the fellow-traveling Democratic and United Peasant parties and independents whose names were placed on the single election list of the Communist-headed national front all were pledged to follow the Red policies.

Express's Berlin correspondent, D. M. Winther, reported from Warsaw that, of 459 seats in the new parliament, the Communists in the voting Sunday won 236, the United Peasants 116, the Democratic party 39 and independents 67. One seat still was undecided.

8 Oklahomans Killed; School Children Said Missing In Louisiana

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Freak tornadoes, believed created by a new cold wave sweeping into the mid-continent from the Northwest, today left at least nine dead and a score injured.

Several school children in Louisiana are missing.

Eight persons in the tiny community of Gans, Okla., were killed when one out-of-season tornado smashed into that tiny farming community.

Two families were hardest hit, one counting four dead and the other three. At least a dozen other Gans residents were injured.

Another tornado struck near Princeton, La., killing at least one person and injuring a number of others.

Reports to the Shreveport Journal from the area said the twister struck a group of school children and several of them were missing.

Some of the injured were taken to a hospital at Minden and others to a Shreveport hospital.

Princeton is 18 miles east of Shreveport.

Two other twisters struck in eastern Oklahoma, destroying some property but there were no casualties.

The National Guard, highway patrol and county officers rushed to Gans, which has a population of about 600.

Six houses were demolished including those of the victims who were still sleeping when the twister swooped down through heavy-laden clouds.

A tornado forecast has been issued for the area by the U. S. Weather Bureau as a cold front from the Northwest swept into Oklahoma. Monday record highs in the 70s for this time of year were reported.

THE TWO OTHER tornadoes were at Warner and Wewoka.

The dead, all from Gans or the immediate area:

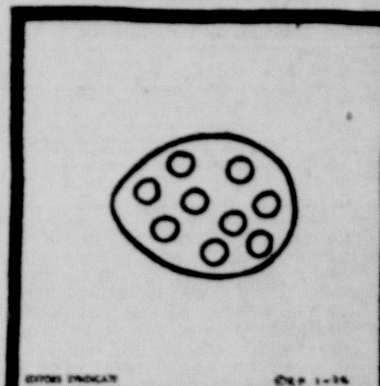

Joe Johnson, 60, C. J. Johnson, 14, his son. Mickey Johnson, 15, another son. Jimmy Meek, 34. Ted Jenkins, 47. Norma Jenkins, 47, his wife. Bonnie Jenkins, 14, their daughter.

Darrel Jenkins, 7, their son. Among the dozen persons taken to hospitals at Fort Smith, Ark., about 15 miles away, were Mrs. Leora Meek, wife of the dead man, Lena Mae Meek, 8, and Lor-

"EGG FOUND IN MACHINE-GUN NEST"

This Doodle might look like a Lasso Lassoing a Lot of Little Lassos or an Experimental Model of the First Bowling Ball, but before you go making any snap judgments study the drawing for a while. Three or four days if possible. Then peek at it again and see if it doesn't look like a Bird's Eye View of a Flying Saucer Parking Lot or an Air-Conditioned Lump. Of course if you like the original title be my guest and read no further. But if you're the harddriving, nose-to-the-grindstone type you'll forge ahead and you'll want to call this Doodle any one of the following A-Number-One titles: Stone Used By Cave Man To Strain Dinosaur Soup, Strawberry With A Rash Because It's Allergic to Strawberries and Golf Ball After Spending an Afternoon With Sammy Sneed.

Colombian Crop Future Looking Much Brighter

A Colombian agricultural worker picks out and destroys useless varieties at the 1,500-acre experimental farm in the Andes.

BOGOTA, Colombia—Seven American agricultural experts, working with Colombian officials in various fields of production, have been boosting development of food crops in a manner that is holding the attention of all Latin America.

They already have succeeded in raising wheat production to 150,000 tons a year, about 20 per cent higher than five years ago. Potato production that formerly ran to the United States average of 75 bushels to the acre, now is better than 300 bushels and is expected to run as high as 750 bushels. Corn, barley and beans—vital to the food production needs of Colombia as well as elsewhere in South America—also are being developed on a scale that soon may solve many of this country's urgent food requirements.

It's all the result of co-operation of Colombia's Ministry of Agriculture and the Rockefeller foundation. Jointly they have invested around a million dollars in the experimental station of Tibayata, covering some 1,500 acres high in the Andes near Bogota.

THERE NOW is a staff of 250 persons working on the experimental farm, with 65 professionals, including the seven Americans, guiding the program. Greenhouses, a livestock section, quarters for students and a complement of auxiliary buildings are included in the project.

Progress in wheat production is the most dramatic. Although wheat has been grown here since the sixteenth century, when it was introduced by Spanish missionaries, these early varieties deteriorated to a point where it no longer is profitable to raise the crop.

THE EXPERIMENTAL station has overcome this by producing hundreds of thousands of wheat hybrids. Now, every six months, 75,000 new wheat hybrids are produced among 19 new varieties and from these the Ministry of Agriculture expects to have at least eight or nine usable varieties than can prosper in the Andean farm areas.

The Tibayata station also is contributing specimens to the Corn bank at Beltsville, Md., in a program arranged through the National Research council. More than 3,000 corn specimens grown throughout the western hemisphere have been assembled for future study and breeding by Canada, the United States and all western hemisphere nations. More than a third of these specimens have been sent from Colombia, to which corn is native.

Medic's Trial Continuing In Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio—The trial of Dr. John Corbett Coldiron, 59-year-old Dayton physician accused of illegally administering narcotics, moves into its second day in federal court here today.

Dr. Coldiron, formerly of Hazard, Ky., was a Kentucky state senator between 1947 and 1951, and a unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor of Kentucky. He has been practicing in Dayton since 1955.

At Monday's proceedings, Willie T. Caldwell, 28, of Dayton, an admitted former dope addict, testified he paid Dr. Coldiron $5 and $8 for daily shots of morphine sulfate between mid-March and Easter last year.

Asst. U. S. Atty. James E. Appelgate of Cincinnati, said the government would seek to prove that Dr. Coldiron administered the shots "for profit."

Defense Atty. James Bullock, also of Cincinnati, said Dr. Coldiron was trying to cure several dope users of their addiction. Dr. Coldiron was arrested last May.

Helicopter Taxi Service To End

CLEVELAND—Helicopter Taxi Service, which has carried 17,000 passengers on short local flights from Lakefront Airport since 1954, will end here Feb. 1.

"It has been no secret that our helicopter passenger service has been conducted on a loss basis to gain experience," said Cleveland Air Taxi President Kenyon C. Bolton. "There is no reason to continue this phase of our development," he added.

Passenger service after Feb. 1 will be on a charter basis.

The helicopter taxi operated to 45 heliostops and industrial landing points in this area and made flights from Cleveland Hopkins airport to the Lakefront port.

Civil Rights Bill Seen As Certainty

WASHINGTON—Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.) says there are indications Congress will pass a modified civil rights program this session although he anticipates "a form of a filibuster."

"I don't believe it (a filibuster) will be strong enough or there will be enough men participating in it to actually make it effective," he added.

Expansion Seen As Coming For Foreign Trade

Barrier Possible In Formation Of Europe Common Market

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK—Many businessmen today are looking for expanded foreign trade this year—no matter how the Congressional debate goes over expanded foreign aid.

But a new possible barrier to American goods may be in the making across the Atlantic this coming weekend.

American exporters are watching closely the move of Western European nations to unite in one common market—a move which some here fear would erect new trade barriers against American goods. About one fourth of our exports are taken each year by those nations.

The urge to unite economically was given a big push by the Suez Canal closing, which brought all European nations a shortage of essential oil.

The Swiss Bank Corp. of Basle notes that this disaster "demonstrated convincingly that all peoples of Western Europe share a common destiny."

Representatives of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands will meet this coming weekend in Brussels to discuss the financial first steps for setting up such a union. If agreement is reached the formal signing of the pact will come on February 17. England and some of the other neighboring nations have indicated they would associate themselves in part with the plan later.

The ultimate goal is a customs union, which would mean no tariffs on goods traded among the members—but with the United States left on the outside. Some think the gradual lowering of these tariff barriers will take 12 to 15 years. Backers of the plan in Western Europe have said that the resulting stronger economy there would mean a greater market for Americans after the initial shaking down period.

The plan is unlikely to effect American trade this year. And even the blow to European industry given by the canal blocking isn't enough to cause American exporters to lower their sights for a record year in 1957.

Mercury Climbs By 94 Degrees

BOONVILLE, N. Y.—The temperature climbed 94 degrees in less than a week in this Adirondack Mountain community. The mercury plunged to 55 degrees below zero last Tuesday, and Monday the temperature was 39 degrees above.

Council forecasts export volume will rise by one billion dollars to a new high of 18 billion this year. It expects imports of merchandise goods to increase by 300 million dollars to 13 billion, which also would be a record.

Colombian Crop Future Looking Much Brighter

A Colombian agricultural worker picks out and destroys useless varieties at the 1,500-acre experimental farm in the Andes.

By Central Press Association

BOGOTA, Colombia—Seven American agricultural experts, working with Colombian officials in various fields of production, have been boosting development of food crops in a manner that is holding the attention of all Latin America.

They already have succeeded in raising wheat production to 150,000 tons a year, about 20 per cent higher than five years ago. Potato production that formerly ran to the United States average of 75 bushels to the acre, now is better than 300 bushels and is expected to run as high as 750 bushels.

Corn, barley and beans—vital to the food production needs of Colombia as well as elsewhere in South America—also are being developed on a scale that soon may solve many of this country's urgent food requirements.

It's all the result of co-operation of Colombia's Ministry of Agriculture and the Rockefeller foundation. Jointly they have invested around a million dollars in the experimental station of Tibayata, covering some 1,500 acres high in the Andes near Bogota.

THERE NOW is a staff of 250 persons working on the experimental farm, with 65 professionals, including the seven Americans, guiding the program. Greenhouses, a livestock section, quarters for students and a complement of auxiliary buildings are included in the project.

Progress in wheat production is the most dramatic. Although wheat has been grown here since the Sixteenth century, when it was introduced by Spanish missionaries, these early varieties deteriorated to a point where it no longer is profitable to raise the crop.

THE EXPERIMENTAL station has overcome this by producing hundreds of thousands of wheat hybrids. Now, every six months, 75,000 new wheat hybrids are produced among 19 new varieties and from these the Ministry of Agriculture expects to have at least eight or nine usable varieties than can prosper in the Andean farm areas.

The Tibayata station also is contributing specimens to the Corn bank at Beltsville, Md., in a program arranged through the National Research Council. More than 3,000 corn specimens grown throughout the western hemisphere have been assembled for future study and breeding by Canada, the United States and all western hemisphere nations. More than a third of these specimens have been sent from Colombia, to which corn is native.

Medic's Trial Continuing In Dayton

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The trial of Dr. John Corbett Coldiron, 59-year-old Dayton physician accused of illegally administering narcotics, moves into its second day in federal court here today.

Dr. Coldiron, formerly of Hazard, Ky., was a Kentucky state senator between 1947 and 1951, and an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant governor of Kentucky. He has been practicing in Dayton since 1955.

At Monday's proceedings, Willie T. Caldwell, 28, of Dayton, an admitted former dope addict, testified he paid Dr. Coldiron $5 and $8 for daily shots of morphine sulfate between mid-March and Easter last year.

Asst. U. S. Atty. James E. Applegate of Cincinnati, said the government would seek to prove that Dr. Coldiron administered the shots "for profit."

Defense Atty. James Bullock, also of Cincinnati, said Dr. Coldiron was trying to cure several dope users of their addiction.

Dr. Coldiron was arrested last May.

Helicopter Taxi Service To End

CLEVELAND (AP)—Helicopter Taxi Service, which has carried 17,000 passengers on short local flights from Lakefront Airport since 1954, will end here Feb. 1.

"It has been no secret that our helicopter passenger service has been conducted on a loss basis to gain experience," said Cleveland Air Taxi President Kenyon C. Bolton. "There is no reason to continue this phase of our development," he added.

Passenger service after Feb. 1 will be on a charter basis.

The helicopter taxi operated to 45 heliostops and industrial landing points in this area and made flights from Cleveland Hopkins airport to the Lakefront port.

Civil Rights Bill Seen As Certainty

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.) says there are indications Congress will pass a modified civil rights program this session although he anticipates "a form of a filibuster."

"I don't believe it (a filibuster) will be strong enough or there will be enough men participating in it to actually make it effective," he added.

Expansion Seen As Coming For Foreign Trade

Barrier Possible In Formation Of Europe Common Market

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Many businessmen today are looking for expanded foreign trade this year—no matter how the Congressional debate goes over expanded foreign aid.

But a new possible barrier to American goods may be in the making across the Atlantic this coming weekend.

American exporters are watching closely the move of Western European nations to unite in one common market—a move which some here fear would erect new trade barriers against American goods. About one fourth of our exports are taken each year by those nations.

The urge to unite economically was given a big push by the Suez Canal closing, which brought all European nations a shortage of essential oil.

The Swiss Bank Corp. of Basle notes that this disaster "demonstrated convincingly that all peoples of Western Europe share a common destiny."

Representatives of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands will meet this coming weekend in Brussels to discuss the financial first steps for setting up such a union. If agreement is reached the formal signing of the pact will come on February 17. England and some of the other neighboring nations have indicated they would associate themselves in part with the plan later.

The ultimate goal is a customs union, which would mean no tariffs on goods traded among the members—but with the United States left on the outside. Some think the gradual lowering of these tariff barriers will take 12 to 15 years. Backers of the plan in Western Europe have said that the resulting stronger economy there would mean a greater market for Americans after the initial shaking down period.

The plan is unlikely to effect American trade this year. And even the blow to European industry given by the canal blocking isn't enough to cause American exporters to lower their sights for a record year in 1957.

COMING ATTRACTION

NEWS THAT THE United States will have King Saud of Saudi Arabia as its guest later this month should fill everyone with a delightful sense of anticipation.

He stands six-six and is every inch a king. The fact sheet reveals that his 24 palaces are air-conditioned and air-cooled. His kitchens are modeled after those of the Waldorf-Astoria. He loves fountains, swimming pools and gardens, as who doesn't?

Most of his people get about on camels or shank's mares. But that is not Saud's fault. He tries to set them the good example. Though he owns a fleet of air-conditioned, gold-plated C—s, he never rides in more than one car at a time.

Most warming is the information that Saud once paid $400 for a cup of tea because he was thirsty and that when his limousine ran down a chicken, he paid the farmer $40. Plainly there is little anyone can do for such a monarch to make him feel receptive but look receptive.

Dust off the teacups and loose the chickens. Then come on Saud.

BOMBS AND CRACKPOTS

ONE OF THE unfortunate by-products of nationwide news dissemination is that a crime in one end of the nation often brings imitations elsewhere.

That seems to be the case with the 'Mad Bomber' scare in New York City. It has not only created a bomb hoax wave so severe in New York that police are limiting the checking of such reports, it has also created similar scares in other cities.

So far it appears that the reported 'bombs' have only been fakes created by someone with a strangely distorted mind, or else false alarms. But these create unnecessary work for the police. They could cause a stampede in a crowded place which might occasion more deaths and damage than a small bomb.

But bombs more than other menaces symbolize this age. With talk of A-bombs and H-bombs constantly drumming upon the public consciousness, it is little wonder that minds not quite on the square fasten upon these weapons.

RENAISSANCE OF BEARDS

BEARDS ARE staging something of a comeback in the U. S., according to a dispatch in the Wall Street Journal, which quotes barbers in several big cities, as well as the managing editor of the Barber's Journal. All point out that the number of males sporting facial foliage still is not large, but admit that the trend is growing.

Not many beards have been seen on American males since World War I, and as such style trends usually operate in cycles, perhaps a renaissance of beards—with most males wearing them—may now be looked for. Safety and electric razor manufacturers will resist such a trend vehemently, and there is almost unanimous feminine opposition to such a development.

But the author of the Wall Street Journal story quotes a psychiatrist as saying he notices more beards and he thinks he

These Days

Those in our government who believed in 1948 or thereabouts that Red China should forthwith be recognized are still on the job. They do not call the Chinese Communists "Agrarian Reformers" as they did in an earlier period, but their recent argument has been that the Chinese Communists ought not to like the Russian Communists and that if the United States gives the Chinese Communists enough encouragement, they will split off from Soviet Russia.

Chou En-lai has given the lie to this argument in recent days when he has been travelling among the European satellites telling their leaders that for the good of the great Marxist-Leninist cause, they should all stand by the Kremlin come what will. Actually, Chou has been working for Khrushchev as against Tito and if, as is true, the Chinese Communists prefer Stalinism to the type of operation employed by Khrushchev and Bulganin, the fact is that they all drink through the same straw.

The argument, therefore, that a split between Chinese Communism and Russian Communism is likely has no basis in fact and represents wishful thinking.

Robert J. Donovan, whose book, "Eisenhower: The Inside Story," has made him the principal and most able apologist for President Eisenhower and his Administration, in a "Saturday Evening Post" article discusses this problem in three important paragraphs:

"Mr. Eisenhower has long been troubled by doubts about the wisdom of endless nonrecognition of Red China. Time and again, he has sat at his desk and insisted that it is shortsighted to look at only one side of this question. Obviously, Chinese belligerence has made recognition impossible up to now. But times change, the President argues; witness the revolution in our attitude toward Germany in the last decade.

"Is it not at least worth considering, the President asks, whether the policy of nonrecognition, if continued indefinitely, might defeat the long-range interests of the United States? The point he makes is that permanent nonrecognition may encourage China in clinging to her alliance with Moscow, whereas recognition might have the eventual effect of helping to loosen this tie."

The third paragraph of this statement includes this telling sentence:

"... Because of this attitude, the possibility of a material change in relations between Red China and the United States will lurk in the background of the second term."

Is this a trial balloon or does it forebode a recognition of Red China by the United States and a visit to this country by Chou En-lai who ordered the murder of our sons in the United Nations Police Action in Korea, and their brainwashing and brutalization after they were taken prisoners of war?

The United States did not recognize Soviet Russia from 1917 to 1933. It did the United States no particular harm not to recognize Soviet Russia; we have been in constant trouble since we recognized Soviet Russia and there is ample evidence that every term of the recognition agreements has been violated by the Russians. There is no present or foreseeable advantage in recognizing Red China—not even a trade advantage.

Money Is No Idol To Him

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"The reason many uneducated men make successes in business," said Murray Cohen, who never finished grammar school, "is that subconsciously they seek security in money."

"But I never idolized money," said Cohen, who is as calm and as sure as a bottle of benzene. Cohen, who is a millionaire who probably doesn't idolize money. How can you idolize something you are making so fast you don't have time to count it?

There are a number of unusual things about Murray, who is a blue-eyed, sandy-haired philanthropist and businessman who was born poor on the Lower East Side and still wears the air of surety of one who broke his knuckles young, but still won. For example:

He went to work selling paper and twine at 14, and four years later was earning $40,000 a year selling laundry machinery.

He lives in a suite in the Waldorf Towers, and is the only tenant there who does his own laundry.

He is also a bachelor who washes 30 million diapers a year.

He is, as a matter of fact, president and board chairman of Consolidated Laundries, the world's largest firm in the field, and kingpin in the nation's $400 million a year linen supply and laundry industry.

In 1943 when he moved in and took over control of the company he was hailed as the youngest top executive of any firm on the New York Stock Exchange.

"It was losing money, and going downhill," he said. "Its annual business was about $6 million and it hadn't paid a dividend in some 10 years. This year we'll do $22 million."

How did he do it: This is Cohen's explanation:

"I did it by molding the men I found there when I took over the firm. I didn't bring in men from the outside."

"We had about 2,000 employees then, and we have about 4,000 now, plus 800 trucks. All the managers of the 23 plants we have today were route delivery men or route supervisors when I came."

Cohen, who doesn't mind admitting he enjoys playing hard, also says he has kept the first promise he made to the men in his firm:

"I will work harder than any of you."

The results show somebody or something worked: Cohen now has 250,000 customers, a customer being the mother of a newborn baby, a hotel a whole chain of restaurants, a barber shop or a series of beauty parlors.

"The rental of towels, napkins, tablecloths, and service uniforms is the big thing today," he said. "Dry cleaning and the handling of home laundry are minor compared to it."

"There are a lot of angles to this business. We own $10 million worth of linens, as we call cotton goods. We've got a new diaper now shaped like an hourglass instead of square . . . more efficient."

"You know how to deal with employees? First, make them have a real sense of belonging to your organization to give them emotional security. Then over-pay them; that gives them financial security. Nothing makes a man feel more secure than being over-paid."

SYNOPSIS
Lieutenant Chad Endicott, a Civil War veteran, is asked when he is ordered from St. Louis to establish an Army post in the Dakota Territory. For he must leave his fiancée, Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of General Tipton, and postpone their marriage for at least a year. Before he leaves, Chad meets a young woman, a wealthy trader and his rival for Elizabeth, to respect their engagement or he will kill him when he returns. Myra, the loving wife of Major Otto Grunwald, is in love with Stiner, and, although she knows he is a traitor, she is a nun plot against Chad. Meanwhile, Chad sails up the treacherous Missouri river with an infantry company commanded by Colonel Randall, who is bringing his beautiful Spanish wife, Isabella. Chad doubts Randall's ability as a leader. As the river boat makes its way slowly upriver to Indian Territory, Chad, a weather-beaten scout for the Army, tells Chad what to expect from the warlike Sioux. Black Stiner, a Stiner, after a reasonable wait, starts his campaign to win Elizabeth. At about this time, Chad and his troops experience their first difficulty—the boat gets stuck on a sandbar. Before they can get clear, a band of Indians attack. But Chad and his troops drive them off without casualties. Finally, after two months, they reach their destination.

CHAPTER 10

COLONEL Randall selected a site for the fort on a slight eminence about one-third of a mile from the river's edge, noting carefully that the vision in all directions was not obscured. With Chad's and Sergeant Mullivane's help, he measured off a rectangle 280 by 300 feet.

"There you are, Lieutenant," Randall said. "Before you lie the outline of Fort Butterfield."

"Fort Butterfield," Chad repeated. "I wondered what you were going to call it. I hope General Butterfield will be proud of his namesake."

"He should," Randall said, smiling. "It isn't every day somebody names a fort after you."

"We'll do our best to make the old hero of Gettysburg proud of it, sir," Chad added.

Randall turned to Mullivane. "Sergeant, name the six best fighting men we have."

Mullivane grinned as he took the short-stemmed, black briar out of his mouth.

His brash courage was often more of a liability than an asset. Because of it, he had lost the commission he'd held during the war. He had worked back up to top kick of the outfit, but he was not satisfied. The ambition to regain his shoulder bars was a driving urge in him.

"Six fighting men, is it, sir?" Mullivane murmured. "Higgins, O'Hara, Donovan, Flannigan, Bourke."

Randall pressed, "One more, Sergeant."

Getting To Sleep Poses Real Problem For Some

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HAVE a tough time getting up this morning? Wouldn't you rather have stayed in bed a little longer? Well, I guess just about everyone feels like this once in a while.

Actually, though, eight hours sleep usually is enough for the average person. There can be no steady rule. You might need more or you might need less.

If you go to bed early and arise early, you'll probably get along best with eight or even nine hours' sleep. If you're a night owl, you may get by with only six or seven. Some do with even less sleep.

Sleeping Period

Your efficiency is geared to your sleeping period. If you're in bed early and up early, you will be most efficient during the early part of the day. As evening approaches, you lose a good part of your efficiency.

For night owls, who sleep pretty late and just hate to get up, efficiency reaches its peak during the evening hours. Usually, it will be very low when you awake.

You men are apt to be in a daze while shaving and you'll probably stumble through your early chores. And you women might find getting breakfast a difficult task.

Whatever time you go to bed, the first three hours of slumber will benefit you most. That's when you sleep the soundest.

Slow Trend
After three hours, there is a slow trend toward waking and you're apt to toss and turn more. Getting to sleep, however, is the real problem for many of you. You'll toss and turn and spend a good deal of time trying to force yourself to sleep. However, there are several dos and don'ts to follow to help you into the land of nod.

Let's consider the don'ts. Don't depend upon sleeping pills or potions. While they might be all right if prescribed by a doctor in case of an illness, they are only a crutch which you might lead you into the drug habit, if you misuse them.

Don't exercise before you go to bed, if you sleep poorly. If you want to reduce or develop your body, wait until morning to perform your aerobics. Exercise, both physical and mental, tends to alert you rather than soothe you.

For that reason, don't try to solve any troublesome problems just before turning in. With a good night's sleep, you'll be able to tackle them much easier the next day.

Tomorrow I'll give you some helpful hints on how to get to sleep quickly and easily.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
M. E.: What causes warts under the armpits and what can be done to remove them?

Answer: The cause of warts is not known, but it is possible that some are due to infection. Some types of warts may be removed by cauterizing them with acetic acid, or by freezing them with carbon dioxide snow. Try, Stop Me

John Masters in "Bugles and a Tiger," tells of an occasion where Napoleon chided the mayor of a French town for failing to give him the customary salute of guns when he arrived for a visit. The mayor bumbled that he had not received advance notice of the Emperor's visit, that there was no one about who knew how to fire the cannon, that the powder was wet, and dangerous in this dry season to boot. Noting that Napoleon was not taking these alibies with particularly good grace, the mayor added, "Besides, Your Majesty, we have no cannon."

COMING ATTRACTION

NEWS THAT THE United States will have King Saud of Saudi Arabia as its guest later this month should fill everyone with a delightful sense of anticipation.

He stands six-six and is every inch a king. The fact sheet reveals that his 24 palaces are air-conditioned and air-cooled. His kitchens are modeled after those of the Waldorf-Astoria. He loves fountains, swimming pools and gardens, as who doesn't?

Most of his people get about on camels or shank's mares. But that is not Saud's fault. He tries to set them the good example. Though he owns a fleet of air-conditioned, gold-plated C—s, he never rides in more than one car at a time.

Most warming is the information that Saud once paid $400 for a cup of tea because he was thirsty and that when his limousine ran down a chicken, he paid the farmer $40. Plainly there is little anyone can do for such a monarch to make him feel receptive but look receptive.

Dust off the teacups and loose the chickens. Then come on Saud.

BOMBS AND CRACKPOTS

ONE OF THE unfortunate by-products of nationwide news dissemination is that a crime in one end of the nation often brings imitations elsewhere.

That seems to be the case with the "Mad Bomber" scare in New York City. It has not only created a bomb hoax wave so severe in New York that police are limiting the checking of such reports, it has also created similar scares in other cities.

So far it appears that the reported "bombs" have only been fakes created by someone with a strangely distorted mind, of else false alarms. But these create unnecessary work for the police. They could cause a stampede in a crowded place which might occasion more deaths and damage than a small bomb.

But bombs more than other menaces symbolize this age. With talk of A-bombs and H-bombs constantly drumming upon the public consciousness, it is little wonder that minds not quite on the square fasten upon these weapons.

RENAISSANCE OF BEARDS

BEARDS ARE staging something of a comeback in the U. S., according to a dispatch in the Wall Street Journal, which quotes barbers in several big cities, as well as the managing editor of the Barber's Journal. All point out that the number of males sporting facial foliage still is not large, but admit that the trend is growing.

Not many beards have been seen on American males since World War I, and as such style trends usually operate in cycles, perhaps a renaissance of beards—with most males wearing them—may now be looked for. Safety and electric razor manufacturers will resist such a trend vehemently, and there is almost unanimous feminine opposition to such a development.

But the author of the Wall Street Journal story quotes a psychiatrist as saying he notices more beards and he thinks he

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Those in our government who believed in 1948 or thereabouts that Red China should forthwith be recognized are still on the job. They do not call the Chinese Communists "Agrarian Reformers" as they did in an earlier period, but their recent argument has been that the Chinese Communists ought not to like the Russian Communists and that if the United States gives the Chinese Communists enough encouragement, they will split off from Soviet Russia.

Chou En-lai has given the lie to this argument in recent days when he has been travelling among the European satellites telling their leaders that for the good of the great Marxist-Leninist cause, they should all stand by the Kremlin come what will. Actually, Chou has been working for Khrushchev as against Tito and if, as is true, the Chinese Communists prefer Stalinism to the type of operation employed by Khrushchev and Bulganin, the fact is that they all drink through the same straw.

The argument, therefore, that a split between Chinese Communism and Russian Communism is likely has no basis in fact and represents wishful thinking.

Robert J. Donovan, whose book, "Eisenhower: The Inside Story," has made him the principal and most able apologist for President Eisenhower and his Administration, in a "Saturday Evening Post" article discusses this problem in three important paragraphs:

"Mr. Eisenhower has long been troubled by doubts about the wisdom of endless nonrecognition of Red China. Time and again, he has sat at his desk and insisted that it is shortsighted to look at only one side of this question. Obviously, Chinese belligerence has made recognition impossible up to now. But times change, the President argues; witness the revolution in our attitude toward Germany in the last decade.

"Is it not at least worth considering, the President asks, whether the policy of nonrecognition, if continued indefinitely, might defeat the long-range interests of the United States? The point he makes is that permanent nonrecognition may encourage China in clinging to her alliance with Moscow, whereas recognition might have the eventual effect of helping to loosen this tie."

The third paragraph of this statement includes this telling sentence:

"...Because of this attitude, the possibility of a material change in relations between Red China and the United States will lurk in the background of the second term."

Is this a trial balloon or does it forebode a recognition of Red China by the United States and a visit to this country by Chou En-lai who ordered the murder of our sons in the United Nations Police Action in Korea, and their brainwashing and brutalization after they were taken prisoners of war?

The United States did not recognize Soviet Russia from 1917 to 1933. It did the United States no particular harm not to recognize Soviet Russia; we have been in constant trouble since we recognized Soviet Russia and there is ample evidence that every term of the recognition agreements has been violated by the Russians. There is no present or foreseeable advantage in recognizing Red China—not even a trade advantage.

SYNOPSIS

Lieutenant Endicott, a Civil War veteran, is killed when he is ordered from St. Louis to establish an Army post in distant Dakota Territory. For he must leave his fiancée, Elizabeth Tipton, daughter of General Tipton, and postpone their marriage for at least a year. Before he leaves, Chad warns Alvin Stiner, a wealthy trader and his rival for Elizabeth, to respect their engagement or he will kill him when he returns. Myra, run-away wife of Major Otto Grunwald, is in love with Stiner, and, although she knows he prefers Elizabeth, helps him plot against Chad. Meanwhile, Chad sails up the treacherous Missouri river with an infantry company commanded by Colonel Randall, who is bringing his beautiful Spanish wife, Isabella. Chad doubts Randall's ability as a leader. As the river boat makes its way slowly upriver to Indian territory, Chad Cumberly, a weather-beaten scout for the Army, tells Chad what to expect from the warlike Sioux. Back in St. Louis, Stiner, after a reasonable wait, starts his campaign to win Elizabeth. At about this time, Chad and his troops experience their first difficulty—the boat gets stuck on a sandbar. Before they can get clear, a band of Indians attacks. But Chad and his troops drive them off without casualties. Finally, after two months, they reach their destination.

CHAPTER 10

COLONEL Randall selected a site for the fort on a slight eminence about one-third of a mile from the river's edge, noting carefully that the vision in all directions was not obscured. With Chad's and Sergeant Mullivane's help, he measured off a rectangle 250 by 300 feet.

"There you are, Lieutenant," Randall said. "Before you lie the outline of Fort Butterfield."

"Fort Butterfield?" Chad repeated. "I wondered what you were going to call it. I hope General Butterfield will be proud of his namesake."

"He should," Randall said, smiling. "It isn't every day somebody names a fort after you."

"We'll do our best to make the old hero of Gettysburg proud of it, sir," Chad added.

Randall turned to Mullivane. "Sergeant, name the six best fighting men we have."

Mullivane grinned as he took the short-stemmed, black briar out of his mouth.

His brash courage was often more of a liability than an asset. Because of it, he had lost the commission he'd held during the war. He had worked back up to top kick of the outfit, but he was not satisfied. The ambition to regain his shoulder bars was a driving urge in him.

"Six fighting men, is it, sir?" Mullivane murmured. "Higgins, O'Hara, Donovan, Flannigan, Bourke."

Randall pressed, "One more, Sergeant."

"I understand, sir."

"Take a detail of men and erect a corral for the stock. Later on, you will see that enough wild hay is cut to get our animals through the winter." He smiled briefly. "I'm sure that our work here will put both of us another notch up the ladder. As you know, we had no hope as long as we rotted in Jefferson Barracks."

Getting To Sleep Poses Real Problem For Some

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

HAVE A tough time getting up this morning? Wouldn't you rather have stayed in bed a little longer? Well, I guess just about everyone feels like this once in a while.

Actually, though, eight hours' sleep usually is enough for the average person. There can be no steadfast rule. You might need more or you might need less.

If you go to bed early and arise early, you'll probably get along best with eight or even nine hours' sleep. If you're a night owl, you may get by with only six or seven. Some do with even less sleep.

Sleeping Period

Your efficiency is geared to your sleeping period. If you're in bed early and up early, you will be most efficient during the early part of the day. As evening approaches, you lose a good part of your efficiency.

For night owls, who sleep pretty late and just hate to get up, efficiency reaches its peak during the evening hours. Usually, it will be very low when you awake.

You men are apt to be in a daze while shaving and you'll probably stumble through your early chores. And you women might find getting breakfast a difficult task.

Whatever time you go to bed, the first three hours of slumber will benefit you most. That's when you sleep the soundest.

Slow Trend

After three hours, there is a slow trend toward waking and you're apt to toss and turn more. Getting to sleep, however, is the real problem for many of you. You'll toss and turn and spend a good deal of time trying to force yourself to sleep. However, there are several dos and don'ts to follow to help you into the land of nod.

Let's consider the don'ts.

Don't depend upon sleeping pills or potions. While they might be all right if prescribed by a doctor in case of an illness, they are only a crutch which you might come to depend upon. They might lead you into the drug habit, if you misuse them.

Don't exercise before you go to bed. If you sleep poorly. If you want to reduce or develop your body, wait until morning to perform your aerobics. Exercise, both physical and mental, tends to alert you rather than soothe you.

For that reason, don't try to solve any troublesome problems just before turning in. With a good night's sleep, you'll be able to tackle them much easier the next day.

Tomorrow I'll give you some helpful hints on how to get to sleep quickly and easily.

Money Is No Idol To Him

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—"The reason many uneducated men make successes in business," said Murray Cohen, who never finished grammar school, "is that subconsciously they seek security in money."

"But I never idolized money." At 49, Cohen, who is as calm and restful as a bottle of benzadrine pills, really is a millionaire who probably doesn't idolize money. How can you idolize something you are making so fast you don't have time to count it?

There are a number of unusual things about Murray, who is a blue-eyed, sandy-haired philanthropist and businessman who was born poor on the Lower East Side and still wears the air of surety of one who broke his knuckles young, but still won. For example:

He went to work selling paper and twine at 14, and four years later was earning $40,000 a year selling laundry machinery.

He lives in a suite in the Waldorf Towers, and is the only tenant there who does his own laundry.

He is also a bachelor who washes 30 million diapers a year.

He is, as a matter of fact, president and board chairman of Consolidated Laundries, the world's largest firm in the field, and kingpin in the nation's $400 million a year linen supply and laundry industry.

In 1943 when he moved in and took over control of the company he was hailed as the youngest top executive of any firm on the New York Stock Exchange.

"It was losing money, and going downhill," he said. "Its annual business was about $6 million and it hadn't paid a dividend in some 10 years. This year we'll do $22 million."

How did he do it? This is Cohen's explanation: "I did it by molding the men I found there when I took over the firm. I didn't bring in men from the outside."

"We had about 2,000 employees then, and we have about 4,000 now, plus 800 trucks. All the managers of the 23 plants we have today were route delivery men or route supervisors when I came."

Cohen, who doesn't mind admitting he enjoys playing hard, also says he has kept the first promise he made to the men in his firm:

"I will work harder than any of you."

The results show somebody or something worked: Cohen now has 250,000 customers, a customer being the mother of a newborn baby, a hotel a whole chain of restaurants, a barber shop or a series of beauty parlors. "The rental of towels, napkins, tablecloths, and service uniforms is the big thing today," he said. "Dry cleaning and the handling of home laundry are minor compared to it."

"There are a lot of angles to this business. We own $10 million worth of linens, as we call cotton goods. We've got a new diaper now shaped like an hour-glass instead of square . . . more efficient."

"You know how to deal with employees? First, make them have a real sense of belonging to your organization to give them emotional security. Then over-pay them; that gives them financial security. Nothing makes a man feel more secure than being over-paid."

Crusaders Class Of EUB Holds January Meeting

Bridal Shower Highlights Meet

The January meeting of the Crusaders Class of the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church was held in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Dale Roush.

A bridal shower, honoring Mrs. Lewis Cook Jr., highlighted the evening's session.

Mrs. Dale DeLong opened the meeting with devotions, taken from a book entitled "Living God's Way." The topic chosen was "Accept Him Today," and the main thought of the devotions was to create spiritual concern for the Evangelistic services, which are being held this week.

Several volunteer prayers were given and Mr. Clark Zwyer offered the closing prayer.

Rosemary Flowers reported that Elizabeth Heeter, one of the patients at a local rest home whom the class has chosen to remember, will celebrate her birthday Friday. Mrs. Dale DeLong and Mrs. Russell Archer will purchase a gift for her. Each member is to send her a card.

The members were reminded that the class still has stationery and a jelly product to sell. The group made a contribution to the March of Dimes.

A letter was read from Maxine Stevens, who is now stationed with the armed forces.

Mrs. Ralph Diltz was in charge of the entertainment for the evening. Prizes for the contests were won by Mr. Dale DeLong and Mrs. Cook.

After the honored guests opened their gifts, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Roush and Mrs. Edna Shasteen.

Those attending the event were: Mr. and Mrs. Cary Shasteen, Mr. and Mrs. Dale DeLong, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Zwyer, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Roush, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Archer, Mrs. Willis Flowers, Mrs. Marion DeLong, Mrs. Ralph Diltz, Mrs. Edna Shasteen and the honored guests.

Gifts were sent by Mrs. Larry Little and Mrs. Annabelle Arledge.

Willing Workers Conduct Meeting With Mrs. Croman

Mrs. Sterley Croman of Circleville Route 4 was hostess to members of the Willing Workers Class of Pontius Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. C. W. Kraft, who had charge of the devotions. She led the group in songs and took the scripture lesson from the eighth chapter of Romans.

A reading, "Christ and the Sunset of Life," was followed by prayer by Mrs. Ethel Klingensmith.

The new president, Mrs. Larry Goodman was in charge of the business session.

The group's theme for this year is Faith. The business was opened with the song "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Mrs. Jacob Glitt then offered prayer.

The secretary's report was given and roll call showed an attendance of 12 members and one guest.

During the business a report was given by the flower and card committee for 1956.

A thank you card was read from Mrs. Roy May and Mrs. Bertha Walker.

A donation was made to the March of Dimes and money was given for the church's mimeograph supplies.

It was announced that the group will conduct a sales tax stamps drive in February.

The members paused for silent prayer for deceased members, after which Mrs. Walter Richards offered prayer.

For the program the president gave a memory test on what members observed on entering the church.

The Bible study was presented by Mrs. Guy Stockman, who gave the Bible story of Miriam.

The meeting closed with the group repeating "The Lord's Prayer."

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Ray Bowman and Mrs. Guy Stockman as hostesses; Mrs. Sterley Croman will be in charge of devotions and Mrs. Jacob Glitt will have the program.

Accessories To Beauty Feature Glamorous Designs

A glamorous beauty must have glittering accessories!

When a gal takes beauty aids out of her handbag, and they are beat up and battered, it certainly does not add to her charms. Au contraire, as they say in Paris, where no French femme fatale would dream of carrying a handbag that was not filled with glamorous little treasures, the kind you buy in what Parisiennes call a "boutique."

So take inventory. Do your good-looking aids look good enough to show off in public? If not, new ones are needed. Buying them is fun, for they are designed to look glamorous. Among the prettiest are some made of glittering gold mesh. Not only do they shine in public, but they can not be missed, for they sparkle decoratively.

The mesh line includes all sorts of handbag gimmicks. Every handbag needs a comb, but not every handbag has one as pretty as the one shown in the above picture. The comb folds into the mesh handle for carrying. There are eyeglass cases, a slip-in type and also an interesting zipper style. If you are a smoker, consider a gold mesh cigarette case with matching lighter. Even

Bridal Shower Highlights Meet

The January meeting of the Crusaders Class of the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church was held in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Dale Rough.

A bridal shower, honoring Mrs. Lewis Cook Jr., highlighted the evening's session.

Mrs. Dale DeLong opened the meeting with devotions, taken from a book entitled "Living God's Way." The topic chosen was "Accept Him Today," and the main thought of the devotions was to create spiritual concern for the Evangelistic services, which are being held this week.

Several volunteer prayers were given and Mr. Clark Zwyer offered the closing prayer.

Rosemary Flowers reported that Elizabeth Heeter, one of the patients at a local rest home whom the class has chosen to remember, will celebrate her birthday Friday. Mrs. Dale DeLong and Mrs. Russell Archer will purchase a gift for her. Each member is to send her a card.

The members were reminded that the class still has stationery and a jelly product to sell. The group made a contribution to the March of Dimes.

A letter was read from Maxine Stevens, who is now stationed with the armed forces.

Mrs. Ralph Diltz was in charge of the entertainment for the evening. Prizes for the contests were won by Mr. Dale DeLong and Mrs. Cook.

After the honored guests opened their gifts, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Rough and Mrs. Edna Shasteen.

Those attending the event were: Mr. and Mrs. Cary Shasteen, Mr. and Mrs. Dale DeLong, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Zwyer, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Rough, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Archer, Mrs. Willis Flowers, Mrs. Marion DeLong, Mrs. Ralph Diltz, Mrs. Edna Shasteen and the honored guests.

Gifts were sent by Mrs. Larry Little and Mrs. Annabelle Arledge.

Willing Workers Conduct Meeting With Mrs. Croman

Mrs. Sterley Croman of Circleville Route 4 was hostess to members of the Willing Workers Class of Pontius Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. C. W. Kraft, who had charge of the devotions. She led the group in songs and took the scripture lesson from the eighth chapter of Romans.

A reading, "Christ and the Sunset of Life," was followed by prayer by Mrs. Ethel Klingensmith.

The new president, Mrs. Larry Goodman was in charge of the business session.

The group's theme for this year is Faith. The business was opened with the song "My Faith Looks Up To Thee."

Mrs. Jacob Glitt then offered prayer.

The secretary's report was given and roll call showed an attendance of 12 members and one guest.

During the business a report was given by the flower and card committee for 1956.

A thank you card was read from Mrs. Roy May and Mrs. Bertha Walker.

A donation was made to the March of Dimes and money was given for the church's mimeograph supplies.

It was announced that the group will conduct a sales tax stamps drive in February.

The members paused for silent prayer for deceased members, after which Mrs. Walter Richards offered prayer.

For the program the president gave a memory test on what members observed on entering the church.

The Bible study was presented by Mrs. Guy Stockman, who gave the Bible story of Miriam.

The meeting closed with the group repeating "The Lord's Prayer."

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Ray Bowman and Mrs. Guy Stockman as hostesses; Mrs. Sterley Croman will be in charge of devotions and Mrs. Jacob Glitt will have the program.

Accessories To Beauty Feature Glamorous Designs

A glamorous beauty must have glittering accessories!

When a gal takes beauty aids out of her handbag, and they are beat up and battered, it certainly does not add to her charms. Au contraire, as they say in Paris, where no French femme fatale would dream of carrying a handbag that was not filled with glamorous little treasures, the kind you buy in what Parisiennes call a "boutique."

So take inventory. Do your good looks look good enough to show off in public? If not, new ones are needed.

Buying them is fun, for they are designed to look glamorous. Among the prettiest are some made of glittering gold mesh. Not only do they shine in public, but they can't be missed, for they sparkle decoratively.

The mesh line includes all sorts of handbag gimmicks.

Every handbag needs a comb, but not every handbag has one as pretty as the one shown in the above picture. The comb folds into the mesh handle for carrying.

There are eyeglass cases, a slip-in type and also an interesting zipper style. If you are a smoker, consider a gold mesh cigarette case with matching lighter. Even

U. S. NAVY MAKES A HIT, WITH PEOPLE OF ISRAELI

A U. S. Navy sailor introduces an Israeli beauty to the delights of that All-American delicacy—the hot dog.

By JOSEPH FRIED

Central Press Association Correspondent

TEL AVIV, Israel—Wearing bell-bottom trousers instead of striped pants, America's globe-spiraling sailors are proving themselves full-fledged senior ambassadors of goodwill in this tiny republic which recently became the latest on the list of fabled ports of call of the U. S. Navy.

Nowhere in times of peace has the U. S. Navy scored such a rapid or conclusive victory as in this nation of 1,700,000. In the six months since the first American destroyer tied up at Haifa port, Israel's gateway to the world, a half dozen U. S. ships of war docked here.

The Navy's men have set a new record in achieving goodwill for their country. They've spent shore leave hours helping organize baseball-softball leagues, donating blood to the sick fund, playing host to under-privileged and ailing youngsters, teaching dance-conscious Israelis the latest steps in jive and American folk dances both, and otherwise acting as real "right guys."

The Israelis and the U. S. Navy men hit it off from the start. In a country which guards its independence dearly and sometimes shows temperamental at the sight of foreign warships perched on its front doorstep, the welcome to the American Navy to Israel has been more than smooth.

TO GET an idea of how the Navy scores here, take the most recent visit of a U. S. Sixth Fleet's destroyer, the McGowan. Docked for three days, the vessel had hardly unloaded when its crew played host aboard ship to a group of polo-stricken Israeli youngsters. Later, another group of U. S. seamen were depositing pints of red and white corpuscles that won a new peacetime victory of friendship for their country.

Led by Commander H. W. Howard, commander of the U. S. destroyer division, dozens of crewmen rolled up their sleeves and volunteered donations for the blood bank Magen David Adom, the Israeli Red Cross. A better investment for goodwill in any bank anywhere is doubtful.

A grateful Israel opened its heart to the sailors. Strolling down the main streets of Haifa and Tel Aviv they were greeted with handshakes, smiles—and invitations for dinner!

NO COMPLAINTS, either, when it comes to how best to pass the time on shore leave here. None except for shipmates pulling Shore Patrol duty. For them, Israel is proving just plain dull. Not a single disturbance in which U. S. seamen were involved has come to pass these past several months. Nor has either the Shore Patrol or Israeli police received a complaint from sailors of having been taken or otherwise abused. Veteran seamen shake their heads in wonderment.

Sailors "invading" Israeli bars strike up quick friendships with local residents. Unlike many countries in the Mediterranean,

Israel is an English as well as Hebrew-speaking nation and the sailors are saved the usual hand signs and diagrams in order to make themselves understood.

"Getting around" is what Uncle Sam's sailors really do in Israel. Many have traveled more of the Land of the Bible in three days spent here than residents settled in Israel for a dozen years.

Stories of bright times that await them in Israel have spread up and down the sea lanes plied by the Mediterranean fleet.

A HANDFUL of gobs on the first U. S. warship to put in here forgot themselves for a brief moment as the ship pulled out of Haifa port at the completion of the goodwill visit. Accustomed to other ports in the area, they dug deep into their jeans, came up with leftover Israeli coins and flung them on the dock, expecting attendants to scramble for the lucre.

One sailor who recently revisited Israel as a member of a new crew described his final fleeting glimpse of Israel on that occasion in this way, "I've seen lots, but this took the cake, hands down. As the coins plunked on that dock, these attendants simply went about their cleaning up. When they came to the coins, the dockmen swept them off the edge and into the sea without even looking down."

The Israelis took it good-naturedly, recognizing tradition and its habit-forming affect. No U. S. crewman has tried it since at Haifa port. For in a country where taxi drivers often snub tips and shopkeepers refuse to accept payment for souvenirs from U. S. seamen "because I've got a sister who also lives in Brooklyn and she'd never forgive me if I charged one of her neighbors," a strong mutual respect between things American and the people of Israel has taken hold. The men of the U. S. Navy are bent on securing that new beach-head of goodwill.

wheel and all the foot pedals from my car."

Freel obtained the address and a patrol car was sent on its way. A few minutes later the phone rang again.

"Everything is all right," the same voice reported. "I was looking in the back seat."

Cincy Car Firm Appeals Penalty

CINCINNATI (AP)—A Cincinnati auto firm has appealed to Hamilton county common pleas court from revocation of its dealer's license law is unconstitutional.

The Ohio Motor Vehicle Dealer's and Salesmen's Licensing Board revoked the license of Sycamore Motors several weeks ago on the grounds it violated the board's rule requiring auto buyers be given a copy of the sales order.

Sycamore's appeal declared that laws creating the board are unconstitutional because there is "no connection" between selling automobiles and "the public health, safety and morals" which can be protected constitutionally by the state.

Church Youth Week To Start Sunday

COLUMBUS—Hundreds of churches and communities across Ohio will observe Youth Week, Jan. 27 to Feb. 3, when the place of young people in religious and civic life is stressed.

The Youth Week theme is "Consider your Call." Helping to emphasize that all vocations should be Christian, it also lifts up the place of church-related vocations in the life of young people and encourages them to select positions in the ministry, religious education and missionary work as lifetime vocations. Sunday, Jan. 27, is known as "Denominational Sunday" of Youth Week.

Cake Decorating King Is Selected

CLEVELAND (AP)—Awards for skill in the sweet art of cake decorating will be made at the Ohio Bakers Assn. convention here today when some 600 delegates hold their annual banquet.

Harry Alsleben of the Spang Baking Co., Cleveland, has been judged winner in the home division and gets first prize of a portable television set. Cash prizes go to Bill Gilbow of Kennedy's Bakery in Cambridge for second and Frank Frischau of R. W. Kaase Co., Cleveland, for third.

Toledo Pair Held Following Holdup

TOLEDO (AP)—Police are holding a Toledo couple, captured Sunday after a chase punctuated with gunfire.

Officers said Richard Dopieralski, 33, admitted he robbed a local gas station early Sunday and took $45. He was held on an armed robbery charge.

Dopieralski's wife, Naomi, 25, denied any knowledge of her husband robbing the station and was held as a suspicious person.

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About six months ago I came to this country, to the home of an uncle. I came by boat, and on shipboard I met an officer who sought my company. I hadn't known him before.

He invited me for a drink, along with another girl, in a fellow officer's cabin. We spent a very pleasant evening and the following day were invited for dinner and spent the evening with these officers.

Late in the evening my admirer tried to kiss me and I fought him off, mainly because I had just gone through an unhappy love affair in Europe. He apologized.

When I left the ship in New York, we kissed goodbye and I felt sure we would see each other again. However, I didn't until a few months later, when I saw a friend off to Europe, and lo, the officer was there. He invited me for coffee, took down my address and said I would receive mail. And that's the last I have seen or heard from him. I wrote to his address, that he had given me, but no good.

What went wrong? I fell in love with him and thought certainly that he cared for me too; everything pointed to it. My uncle says it was just "sea water love" that all Navy men have.

P. R.

DEAR P. R.: As I get the picture, the officer introduced himself and, in effect, had a "pick-up" first date with you—over a drink with another girl, in a fellow officer's cabin. In wrestling for a kiss, in the late evening after a second date, he probably was pitching for a transient shipboard affair.

When you foiled his advances (prudently), he probably dropped the idea of pursuing a flirtation with you, meanwhile remaining aware that you were still hopelessly interested in, and rather smitten with him.

Likely it is standard practice with him, on an ocean trip, to scan the passenger list for a pretty woman, preferably traveling alone, who might be available for lovemaking. When he tries for conquest and fails, as in your case, he probably shrugs it off, as part of the game of chance, and doesn't "think back" about it, as you are doing.

His kiss at parting, when your ship reached New York, was given because you seemed to want it, I suppose. His invitation to coffee, when you ran into him a few months later, was his further concession to your eager-faced interest in him, no doubt. The business of taking your address and promising to write was routine diplomacy, perhaps—his way of easing out of a lady's clutches, without being displeasing (at the time).

As to why you've had no answer to a letter sent to his (supposed) address, the obvious first guess would be that he backs away from girls who pursue. The second guess is that he gave a phony address, to prevent you from invading his private life. And a third guess, which ties in with the other two, is that he is a married man, who keeps his life at sea separate from his life on land—whose shipboard romances are over, for him, when his ship puts into port.

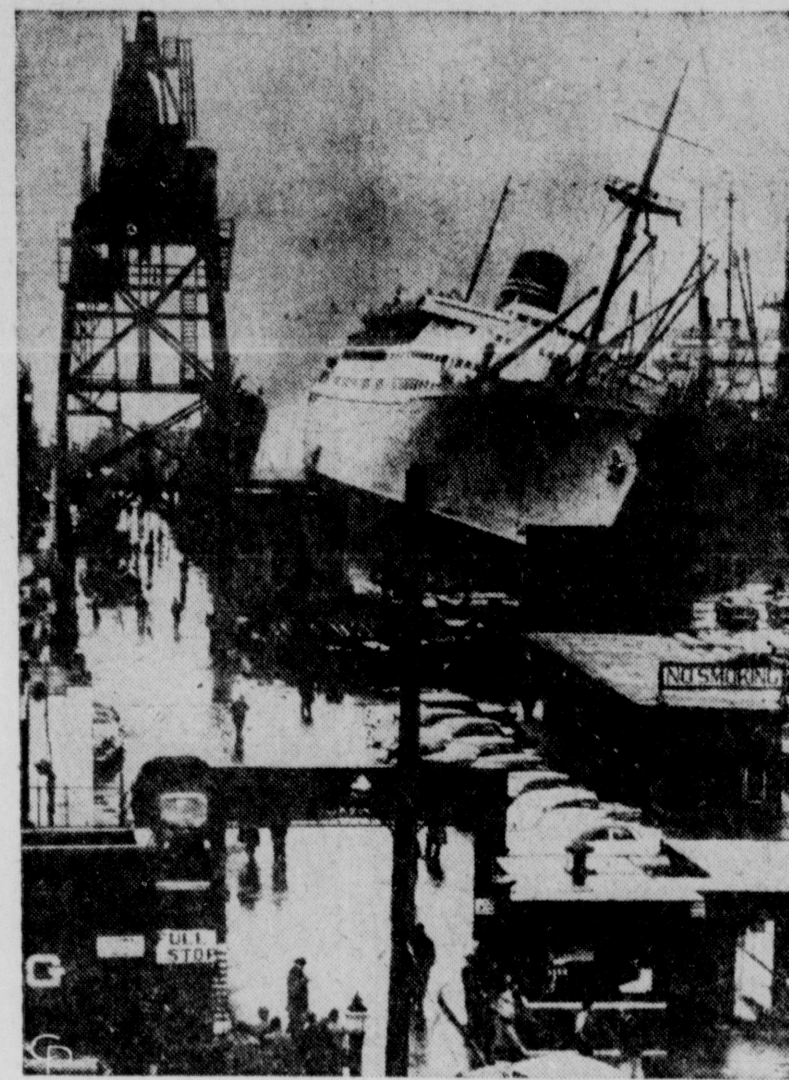

I believe it is taken for granted, amongst seasoned travelers, that shipboard intimacies, that is, sudden friendships with strangers, are traditionally "escapist" experiences. They are part of the pattern of "getting away from it all"—a type of diversion to be enjoyed by sophisticates on this fantasy level, with no effort or intent to make it a continuing part of their down-to-earth story.

So, as to what went wrong, I think it was your response that was out of order. That is, you misconstrued the meaning of the officer's advances. He was casting about for pastime, not courting (or offering) serious interest.

'Pair Of Lions' Seen In California

ROLLING HILLS, Calif. (AP)—A veteran hunter and trapper says he is convinced "there's a pair of lions" in the Palos Verdes hills, just south of Los Angeles.

David R. Bentson's hunt said that fresh tracks discovered Saturday indicated that a male and female mountain lion are prowling the Palos Verdes Peninsula. Last week workers and residents reported seeing large ani-

Gray said the money was taken from his home while two women prayed for him. Police said Mrs. Wilson made a written statement saying William had dressed like a woman, taken the money and given it to her.

William denied it.

"IT SAYS HERE THAT ELECTRICITY COSTS LESS TODAY THAN EVER, BUT OUR BILLS SEEM HIGHER!"

But take a moment to examine that electric bill, Mr. Brown. You'll see that your dollars buy one of today's biggest bargains. Electricity does cost less today than ever, because power production methods are more efficient. The cost of electricity has not risen since before World War II. Yet your electric bill may be higher — because you use more than three times the electric power you used 18 years ago — and you pay 20 percent less for it per kilowatt hour. Chances are your electric bill will continue to increase slightly in years to come — because your family will find more and more uses for electricity. But, remember, you're paying pre-war prices for today's most modern convenience.

Sailors "invading" Israeli bars strike up quick friendships with local residents. Unlike many countries in the Mediterranean,

Israel is an English as well as Hebrew-speaking nation and the sailors are saved the usual hand signs and diagrams in order to make themselves understood.

"Getting around" is what Uncle Sam's sailors really do in Israel. Many have traveled more of the Land of the Bible in three days spent here than residents settled in Israel for a dozen years.

Stories of bright times that await them in Israel have spread up and down the sea lanes piled by the Mediterranean fleet.

A HANDFUL of gobs on the first U. S. warship to put in here forgot themselves for a brief moment as the ship pulled out of Haifa port at the completion of the goodwill visit. Accustomed to other ports in the area, they dug deep into their jeans, came up with leftover Israeli coins and flung them on the dock, expecting attendants to scramble for the lucre.

One sailor who recently revisited Israel as a member of a new crew described his final fleeting glimpse of Israel on that occasion in this way, "I've seen lots, but this took the cake, hands down. As the coins plunked on that dock, these attendants simply went about their cleaning up. When they came to the coins, the dockmen swept them off the edge and into the sea without even looking down."

The Israelis took it good-naturedly, recognizing tradition and its habit-forming affect. No U. S. crewman has tried it since at Haifa port. For in a country where taxi drivers often snub tips and shopkeepers refuse to accept payment for souvenirs from U. S. seamen "because I've got a sister who also lives in Brooklyn," a strong mutual respect between things American and the people of Israel has taken hold. The men of the U. S. Navy are bent on securing that new beach-head of goodwill.

Cincy Car Firm Appeals Penalty

CINCINNATI — A Cincinnati auto firm has appealed to Hamilton county common pleas court from revocation of its dealer's license law is unconstitutional.

The Ohio Motor Vehicle Dealer's and Salesmen's Licensing Board revoked the license of Sycamore Motors several weeks ago on the grounds it violated the board's rule requiring auto buyers be given a copy of the sales order.

Sycamore's appeal declared that laws creating the board are unconstitutional because there is "no connection" between selling automobiles and "the public health, safety and morals" which can be protected constitutionally by the state.

Church Youth Week To Start Sunday

COLUMBUS—Hundreds of churches and communities across Ohio will observe Youth Week, Jan. 27 to Feb. 3, when the place of young people in religious and civic life is stressed.

The Youth Week theme is "Consider your Call." Helping to emphasize that all vocations should be Christian, it also lifts up the place of church-related vocations in the life of young people and encourages them to select positions in the ministry, religious education and missionary work as lifetime vocations. Sunday, Jan. 27, is known as "Denominational Sunday" of Youth Week.

Toledo Pair Held Following Holdup

TOLEDO — Police are holding a Toledo couple, captured Sunday after a chase punctuated with gunfire.

Officers said Richard Dopieralski, 33, admitted he robbed a local gas station early Sunday and took $45. He was held on an armed robbery charge.

Dopieralski's wife, Naomi, 25, denied any knowledge of her husband robbing the station and was held as a suspicious person.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: About six months ago I came to this country, to the home of an uncle. I came by boat, and on shipboard I met an officer who sought my company. I hadn't known him before.

He invited me for a drink, along with another girl, in a fellow officer's cabin. We spent a very pleasant evening and the following day were invited for dinner and spent the evening with these officers.

Late in the evening my admirer tried to kiss me and I fought him off, mainly because I had just gone through an unhappy love affair in Europe. He apologized.

When I left the ship in New York, we kissed goodbye and I felt sure we would see each other again. However, I didn't until a few months later, when I saw a friend off to Europe, and lo, the officer was there. He invited me for coffee, took down my address and said I would receive mail. And that's the last I have seen or heard from him. I wrote to his address, that he had given me, but no good.

What went wrong? I fell in love with him and thought certainly that he cared for me too; everything pointed to it. My uncle says it was just "sea water love" that all Navy men have.

months later, was his further concession to your eager-faced interest in him, no doubt. The business of taking your address and promising to write was routine diplomacy, perhaps—his way of easing out of a lady's clutches, without being displeasing (at the time).

As to why you've had no answer to a letter sent to his (supposed) address, the obvious first guess would be that he backs away from girls who pursue. The second guess is that he gave a phony address, to prevent you from invading his private life. And a third guess, which ties in with the other two, is that he is a married man, who keeps his life at sea separate from his life on land—whose shipboard romances are over, for him, when his ship puts into port.

I believe it is taken for granted, amongst seasoned travelers, that shipboard intimacies, that is, sudden friendships with strangers, are traditionally "escapist" experiences. They are part of the pattern of "getting away from it all"—a type of diversion to be enjoyed by sophisticates on this fantasy level, with no effort or intent to make it a continuing part of their down-to-earth story.

So, as to what went wrong, I think it was your response that was out of order. That is, you misconstrued the meaning of the officer's advances. He was casting about for pastime, not courting (or offering) serious interest.

'Pair Of Lions' Seen In California

ROLLING HILLS, Calif. — A veteran hunter and trapper says he is convinced "there's a pair of lions" in the Palos Verdes hills, just south of Los Angeles.

David R. Bentson's hunt said that fresh tracks discovered Saturday indicated that a male and female mountain lion are prowling the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Last week workers and residents reported seeing large ani-

"IT SAYS HERE THAT ELECTRICITY COSTS LESS TODAY THAN EVER, BUT OUR BILLS SEEM HIGHER!"

But take a moment to examine that electric bill, Mr. Brown. You'll see that your dollars buy one of today's biggest bargains.

Electricity does cost less today than ever, because power production methods are more efficient. The cost of electricity has not risen since before World War II.

Yet your electric bill may be higher — because you use more than three times the electric power you used 18 years ago — and you pay 20 percent less for it per kilowatt hour. Chances are your electric bill will continue to increase slightly in years to come — because your family will find more and more uses for electricity. But, remember, you're paying pre-war prices for today's most modern convenience.

Plants Doubled, Trebled in Growth May Result From Gibberellic Acid

By LEONARD J. SNYDER

WASHINGTON — The government's top plant scientists have high hopes for the eventual widespread use of a little-known chemical which has the remarkable effect of making some plants double and triple their normal growth.

Preliminary studies conducted at the Agriculture department's Beltsville, Md., research center, near Washington, also show that the chemical may have potential for increasing the growth rate and possibly the productivity of a wide variety of crop plants.

If current studies confirm this prospect, widespread use of the chemical will have a revolutionary effect not only on the economies of many nations but to relieve hungry populations around the world.

One fact already has been established by the scientists: the heights of such crop plants as snapbeans, soybeans, peanut, pepper, eggplant, corn and barley already have been doubled or tripled in many cases by the chemical.

The little-known chemical is gibberellic acid, the product of the fungus gibberella which in Japan causes a serious rice disease characterized by excessive plant elongation, lodging, and reduced yields.

JAPANESE SCIENTISTS who worked on preventing this disease isolated chemicals responsible for the unusual growth in height. This later led to further work by American agricultural scientists who found during their greenhouse experiments that in only three to four weeks plants had the ability to grow three times as tall as comparable untreated plants.

Plants in these studies included geranium, poinsettia, sunflower, rose, salvia, dwarf dahlia, petunia and aster. It should be pointed out, however, that in limited tests, direct application of the acid to several plant fruits—tomatoes, snapbeans, and peppers—did not affect growth.

Nevertheless, new growth of young forest trees such as willow oak, tulip poplar and maple were increased greatly while similar treatment on two species of pine and white spruce showed only a slight increase in the growth of new shoots.

The scientists found that the

weight of fresh young soybean—which is used as food in some countries—and snapbean plants and the amount of solid matter in them increased by 30 to 40 per cent with gibberellic acid during the two to three weeks following treatment.

The scientists found that extremely minute amounts—as little as one-millionth of an ounce of the acid in one ounce of water—will make plants grow taller when applied externally to young stems.

Despite the fact that only minute amounts of the acid are needed for increasing plant growth, the scientists, anxious to push ahead with their research, are hampered seriously by a worldwide shortage of the substance.

THE ACID'S sudden recent prominence in plant-growth studies in this country and abroad have made it even more scarce and highly prized. Nevertheless, the world's best brains in plant physiology are continuing their studies as small supplies of the substance come to them from England.

Scientists are planning to expand their research in several ways as a result of their success in dramatically increasing plant growth.

They want to find out if gibberellic acid can be used to increase plant height to give some plants an advantage over competing growths. For example, by aiding rapid growth of young tree seedlings, gibberellic acid may be of value in getting forest plantings started in a nursery or in a forest.

The acid also conceivably could give plants such as peanuts a needed spurt to help the seedlings develop past the early-growth stage where they frequently are destroyed by disease.

PRELIMINARY experiments suggest that the chemical also may be used to force seed production of biennial crops such as cabbage and beets in the first rather than the second season of growth.

The scientists also want to find out whether the acid can be used to increase the dry weight of certain crops at harvest time—especially forage crops. Preliminary tests already indicate that the acid increased the total dry weight of one important field crop, soybeans, during early growth.

In addition, the researchers are anxious to learn whether the acid can be used to step up the growth of such slow-growing plants as are used in the manufacture of pulpwood, which is in great demand.

The world may be hearing more about the "amazing gibberellic acid" in the future; it holds great promise for helping produce better things for better living.

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower's two inaugural addresses, placed side by side, conjure up a single vision: that of a whole line of presidents who in the years ahead may have to say the same thing.

The words of Eisenhower's second inaugural were different from his first in 1953, but the central theme was identical: the struggle against communism.

Communism suffered some reverses this past year but this country seems no nearer to victory over it—or even to a peaceful understanding with it—than it was four years ago when Eisenhower first took office.

The end to the struggle is not in sight. The picture may be the same when a new president takes office on Jan. 20, 1961, or in 1965, or in decades after that.

Eisenhower's address Monday full of platitudes and moralizations, doesn't compare in style or in the hope it offered with what are perhaps two of the most famous inaugural addresses in history, Lincoln's in 1865, Roosevelt's in 1933.

But the circumstances were different. And nothing illustrates better how much American thinking has changed in a quarter of a century than reading Roosevelt's inaugural 24 years ago and Eisenhower's Monday.

Lincoln spoke just a few weeks before the end of the Civil War and could point back to one of the milestones in American history in his first four years—the end of slavery. He also could point forward to victory and peace.

Roosevelt's first inaugural, delivered in the blackest moment of the depression, did not rely on hope for the solution of the nation's ills. It promised "action, and action now." It mentioned "hope" only once, and indirectly.

The action Roosevelt offered meant a profound turn in American life and history: government controls on business and government assumption of responsibility for the welfare of the people. It was the beginning of a new American era.

Not so with the address of Eisenhower, whose problems are worldwide and who, by that very fact, lacks the control and authority Lincoln and Roosevelt had in dealing with purely American dilemmas.

Eisenhower offered "hope" things would get better but nothing new in the way of action. The action he promised—military strength and foreign aid—were already American policy before he took office four years ago.

The one quick, possible solution which Eisenhower might seek—war on Russia—is the one he wants most to avoid. His successors no doubt will likewise seek to avoid it if they can.

Donovan's statement: "... But times change, the President argues; witness the revolution in our attitude toward Germany in the last decade" does not provide a sensible comparison. The United States engaged in the European phases of World War II to rescue Great Britain, France and other countries from the imperialism of Hitler; there was no enmity toward the German people whose contributions to our own culture have been so enormous. As a matter of fact, American troops stationed in Europe seem to have preferred the Germans to all other Europeans and many of them married German wives. No similar affinity exists between Americans and Chinese.

Again, Donovan speaks of "long-range interests of the United States." It would be of value to know what they are. Are they formulated in a document? John Hay once ascribed such interest in the "Open Door Policy" but today so many doors are closed for economic as well as political reasons. What is the present long-range policy of the United States?

At one time, it was assumed that NATO represented the long-range policy of the United States, namely, that this country would support its European allies and West Germany against Soviet Russia. NATO is an outgrowth of the Truman Containment policy.

It would be interesting to know what Donovan is talking about when he refers to "long-range interests."

which had deliberately decided years before to isolate itself from the rest of the world.

Although Roosevelt used the word "interdependence" twice in his 1933 address, it was not in a world sense. On the contrary, he was talking only of the interdependence of the 48 states and of the American people.

When Eisenhower delivered his first inaugural address in 1953, he too used "interdependence" but in a completely opposite sense from Roosevelt. By that time this country had moved from isolationism to world responsibility.

He even went so far four years ago as to speak of "interdependence" among nations as a "basic law." He returned to the same thought Monday when he said: "The economic need of all nations—in mutual dependence—makes isolation an impossibility."

OSU Extension Economist Sums Up 1957 Trade Prospects

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Business generally should be pretty healthy in 1957. Employment will be high, wage rates and costs up, and the consumer's dollar will buy a little less than it did last year. Farm incomes will gain slightly.

These predictions come from Riley Dougan, Ohio State University extension economist, who draws his conclusions from anticipated demands upon our economy by consumers, business and government.

Last year, Dougan points out, consumer incomes rose enough to provide an increase in the average purchasing power for each person, even though our population has continued to rise and retail prices have increased about two percent. This year, he sees both incomes and expenditures of consumers increasing.

Business confidence continues high, the economist points out, and he expects further outlays for expansion at least through the first part of this year.

On the subject of government spending, Dougan observes that federal spending has decreased a little in recent years, while state and local government spending has shown a continuous increase.

"Total demands by government are likely to increase further in 1957," Dougan says, "but increased tension in such areas as the Middle East introduces some uncertainty in government spending, as well as in other factors contributing to the general business outlook."

The economist forecasts net farm incomes up only slightly this year. Although average farm prices will increase over 1956, costs will be up almost enough to cause little change in net incomes. Hog production may be more profitable than it was last year, Dougan says. Profits from dairy and beef production should be about the same and from poultry production lower.

The maple syrup season is approaching, F. W. Dean, Ohio State University extension forester, advises producers to check equipment, buckets, evaporators and fuel supplies now.

Dean reminds producers of the saying "if you miss the first big run, you may lose the best part of the season."

In other years some sugar camps in Ohio have opened in January, Dean says. The season varies considerably from year to year and from Northern to Southern Ohio.

Usually it opens in Northern Ohio in mid-February and extends through late March. Freezing and thawing weather, with sharp breaks in temperatures from 15 to 40 degrees over extended periods, produce good sap runs, Dean explains.

The forester suggests operators watch weather forecasts, especially 5-day forecasts, to assure them of best results. Some operators sample test trees a few days early to make the "run is on."

Ohio ranks third in the United States in maple syrup production, with an output last year of about 135,000 gallons. It's a $600,000 business in the state.

"A 10 percent drop in voltage will cause a light bulb to give 30 percent less light, a heating element to give 20 percent less heat, and an electric motor to give 19 percent less power," says D. M. Byg, Ohio State University extension agricultural engineer.

Most farm and home electrical equipment is designed to operate at either 120 volts or 240 volts. If the wires carrying the electricity to the appliances are "too small" or "too long" for the load they're carrying, a drop of pressure, or voltage, will occur in the line, Byg points out. Not only does this voltage drop cost you extra money for the inefficient operation of electrical equipment, but you also pay for the electricity that's lost in the form of heat in the "too small" wire, the engineer explains.

"There are many symptoms that indicate low voltage or overloaded wiring," Byg adds. "Heating appliances will always be slow. The toaster will not make good toast. The waffle iron will not heat up. The clothes may take an hour to dry a batch of clothes that should dry in 40 minutes, and water heaters will be slow in heating a new supply of hot water."

These and other easy-to-recognize symptoms of overloaded wiring are described in a new Extension Leaflet, No. L-57, "Diagnosing Your Electrical Ills." This leaflet is available through your county extension office.

"If such symptoms described in this leaflet are showing up in your home or on your farm, make plans to bring your wiring system up-to-date to match the load it's carrying," Byg advises. "It will pay for itself through the saving of wasted electricity and more efficient equipment operation."

Coffee-Break Schedule Urged

COLUMBUS (AP)—From a management standpoint, the best coffee-breaks are those on a fixed schedule, a survey by the Ohio Manufacturers Assn. shows.

Of the employees who sip coffee at fixed times, only between 1 and 6 per cent sip too long. But there are no fixed schedules, 27 to 36 per cent of the employees abuse the privilege of drinking coffee on company time, the survey said.

The association surveyed nearly 700 Ohio manufacturing concerns to get its findings.

At least 89 per cent of the companies had coffee-breaks, most of them two a day.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Many cars are suffering from rear-end-itis; symptoms: back bumper askew and tail lights as glassless as a Hollywood glamour girl. The ailment is most often seen on or near expressways—the superhighways that have a bang-up record when it comes to giving automobile trunks that look of smashing success.

While only 12 percent of the nation's total accidents, both on and off the turnpikes, involve rear-end crashes, 33 percent of turnpike accidents leave vehicles with sagging posteriors. Charles W. Prisk, research engineer of the United States Bureau of Public Roads and head of the Institute of Traffic Engineers, recently stated that unless some means of preventing same-direction crashes is found, new highways will become as dangerous as the old.

The excuse, "I didn't see..." is often heard in connection with rear-end collisions. The reason for this excuse is disclosed in reports from both the New Jersey Turnpike Authority and the Pennsylvania Joint Safety Research Group.

They discovered that rear-end collisions were significantly higher during darkness on straight-up roadway. In fact, John R. Crosby, assistant traffic engineer with the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, reported that twice as many rear-end collisions occur at night as in the daytime.

THEORETICALLY, rear-end collisions could be eliminated if all vehicles on highways could be made to travel at the same speed. However, highway engineers are quick to point out that enforcing a strict program to slow down speeders and speed up crawlers is almost a physical impossibility and a financial improbability.

A recent nation-wide inspection of more than 1,677,000 motor vehicles showed that more than a fourth—26.6 percent—of all mechanical defects were rear lights.

BACK THE ATTACK on Traffic Accidents

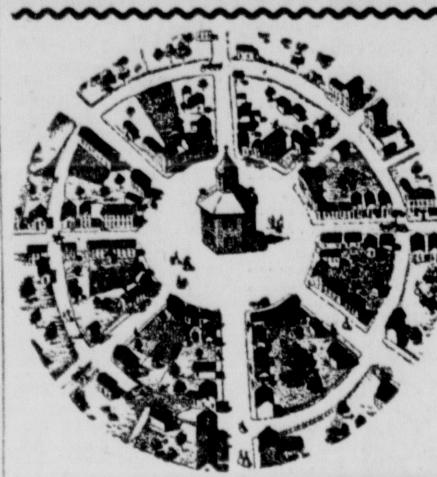

The results of motor vehicle inspections and the higher nighttime collision rate have prompted traffic engineers to call for better rear-end lighting and widespread use of reflective materials.

The traffic engineers' suggestions already have been carried out in a number of ways. Some states are covering license plates with materials that reflect headlights from 2,000 feet away and provide motorists with an ever-present safety device. Pennsylvania Turnpike officers check the rear lights of vehicles entering the pike in an attempt to cut down rear-end collisions.

Truck and bus lines are putting reflective sheeting on their vehicles in an effort to reduce rear-end collisions. Greyhound bus lines report that rear-end collisions dropped 14 percent the first year the lines' busses were reflectorized and 18 percent the second.

One automobile manufacturer, Plymouth, is experimenting with reflective body paint and another, Ford, is conducting experiments with new devices especially designed to prevent rear-end collisions.

Traffic engineers are slowly cutting down the number of rear-end collisions, but it is up to all of us—in the individual driver's seats—to take extra precautions ourselves.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

The prosperity of this region, resulting from the completion of the canal through Circleville, exceeded all expectations.

The Protectionists, who had prophesied that all sorts of "pauper labor" would come into the region and take work away from our own people, couldn't make our "Squirrel Hunters" believe anything was wrong with it, when they were being paid, for working on the canal for 26 "dry days of 12 hours each", the sum of 8 dollars.

It was the first such privilege ever offered around here, to get so much money in such a short time. Prices for products of the farm skyrocketed, too. In 1824, the year before the canal was completed, wheat sold for 25c, and corn had no market at all, except to those making whiskey, who paid 6c per bushel.

AFTER THE canal was in operation, prices for every kind of produce jumped as much as 200 per cent and the demand was terrific—corn sold at 40 to 50 cents and wheat brought from 75 cents to a dollar a bushel. With the high prices paid for the farmers' crops and the 15 million dollars the State had disbursed in Ohio for day labor in the construction of the canal, times here really boomed.

But as always happens—even today—somebody got hurt. Our home manufacturers really took a beating. Peddlers came from the East into this country, like squirrels at moving time, offering for sale at unheard of prices, the many things our local people were making, as well as the "flub-dubs" the folks in the East had been used to.

Our wheelwrights, the reelwrights, the makers of looms, reeds, flyers, hackles, plows and nails were virtually put out of business on account of the canal.

No longer was it necessary when the people wanted a new hat, to go to the "hat Shop" and have their heads measured with a tape-line, and the head be diagrammed for contour and wait until their new "lid" was made—"store hats" were plentiful, at half the price.

One of the shrewdest of the traveling merchants who came into this community, sold a clock to about every land owner in our County for 60 dollars, and gave the buyer a year to pay for it, taking their note, bearing 6 per cent interest—the timepieces cost the New England peddler, two dollars and fifty cents at the factory.

Such deals as this were common and they aroused so much resentment that action was requested of legislative bodies to prevent itinerant peddlers from traveling over the country, selling articles of very little value at high prices and even counterfeits of things for home use. One community really raised a rumpus, when it was discovered that the people had been buncoed by a Connecticut shyster, into buying nutmegs made of wood.

DO YOU KNOW that's how the State of Connecticut came to be called the "Nutmeg State"? Most of the peddlers of wooden nutmegs were from that State.

Besides the "house-to-house" salesmen, the canal trade gave interest and entertainment to hundreds of our early citizens. In every village, most every night, could be found quite a crowd, gathered about a street "hawker" or a "Medicine Man."

These fellows made a killing, selling cheap whiskey, its identity well concealed with yarbs and flavorings, which was guaranteed as a cure for every conceivable ailment, real or imaginary. We would be interested to know just how many dollars these traveling "doctors" wheeled from those they made believe they were infested with "tapeworms" or some other form of nematode.

Those fellows had their spels down pat. You don't see these old-time pitchmen any more, but fortunately some of their strictly Americana patter has been preserved—let's look at one.

"Gentlemen!—your eyes would bug out if I were to tell only a mite of what my unparalleled soap will do. It's magical, radical, tragical. Cleans spots or it will hide spots, will brighten colors or wipe out colors. It's healing, restores beauty and promotes cheerfulness and character of face and form. Taken by emulsion, internally, it cures hiccups or tongue-tiedness. It will curl straight hair or will take the kind out of curly hair. Like it cleans spots from your coats and your breeches, it will make pure your conscience and your character. Never again will the opportunity come, to buy for one thin dime, one-tenth of a dollar, this incomparable, inimitable, infallible, never-failing all-healing, spot removing, beauty-restoring article. Yes sir—only a dime a cake, this little chunk of magic—what miracles it do's perform!"

We'll bet there are many who recall some of these old-time showmen—keen-eyed, full-whiskered, sanctified-looking, glib-talking—doing a whale of a business at the corner of Court and Main.

TOLEDO (AP)—Ice jams have kept the Coast Guard cutter Tupelo busy near the Toledo Harbor light in Lake Erie and in the Detroit River.

The clothes may take an hour to dry a batch of clothes that should dry in 40 minutes, and water heaters will be slow in heating a new supply of hot water."

These and other easy-to-recognize symptoms of overloaded wiring are described in a new Extension Leaflet, No. L-57, "Diagnosing Your Electrical Ills." This leaflet is available through your county extension office.

"If such symptoms described in this leaflet are showing up in your home or on your farm, make plans to bring your wiring system up-to-date to match the load it's carrying," Byg advises. "It will pay for itself through the saving of wasted electricity and more efficient equipment operation."

Coffee-Break Schedule Urged

COLUMBUS (U)—From a management standpoint, the best coffee-breaks are those on a fixed schedule, a survey by the Ohio Manufacturers Assn. shows.

Of the employees who sip coffee at fixed times, only between 1 and 6 per cent sip too long. But there are no fixed schedules, 27 to 36 per cent of the employees abuse the privilege of drinking coffee on company time, the survey said.

The association surveyed nearly 700 Ohio manufacturing concerns to get its findings.

At least 89 per cent of the companies had coffee-breaks, most of them two a day.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

Many cars are suffering from rear-enditis; symptoms: back bumper askew and tail lights as glassless as a Hollywood glamour girl. The ailment is most often seen on or near expressways—the superhighways that have a bang-up record when it comes to giving automobile trunks that look of smashing success.

While only 12 percent of the nation's total accidents, both on and off the turnpikes, involve rear-end crashes, 33 percent of turnpike accidents leave vehicles with sagging posteriors. Charles W. Prisk, research engineer of the United States Bureau of Public Roads and head of the Institute of Traffic Engineers, recently stated that unless some means of preventing same-direction crashes is found, new highways will become as dangerous as the old.

The excuse, "I didn't see..." is often heard in connection with rear-end collisions. The reason for this excuse is disclosed in reports from both the New Jersey Turnpike Authority and the Pennsylvania Joint Safety Research Group.

They discovered that rear-end collisions were significantly higher during darkness on straight-up roadway. In fact, John R. Crosby, assistant traffic engineer with the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, reported that twice as many rear-end collisions occur at night as in the daytime.

THEORETICALLY, rear-end collisions could be eliminated if all vehicles on highways could be made to travel at the same speed. However, highway engineers are quick to point out that enforcing a strict program to slow down speeders and speed up crawlers is almost a physical impossibility and a financial improbability.

A recent nation-wide inspection of more than 1,677,000 motor vehicles showed that more than a fourth—26.6 percent—of all mechanical defects were rear lights.

BACK THE ATTACK on Traffic Accidents

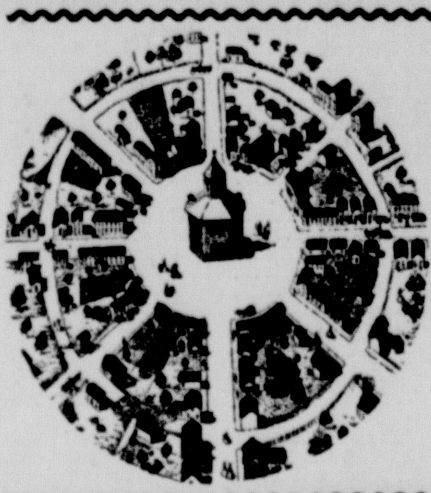

The results of motor vehicle inspections and the higher nighttime collision rate have prompted traffic engineers to call for better rear-end lighting and widespread use of reflective materials.

The traffic engineers' suggestions already have been carried out in a number of ways. Some states are covering license plates with materials that reflect headlights from 2,000 feet away and provide motorists with an ever-present safety device. Pennsylvania Turnpike officers check the rear lights of vehicles entering the pike in an attempt to cut down rear-end collisions.

Truck and bus lines are putting reflective sheeting on their vehicles in an effort to reduce rear-end collisions. Greyhound bus lines report that rear-end collisions dropped 14 percent the first year the lines' busses were reflectorized and 18 percent the second.

One automobile manufacturer, Plymouth, is experimenting with reflective body paint and another, Ford, is conducting experiments with new devices especially designed to prevent rear-end collisions.

Traffic engineers are slowly cutting down the number of rear-end collisions, but it is up to all of us—in the individual driver's seats—to take extra precautions ourselves.

Roundtown Retrospect

By Mac Noggle

The prosperity of this region, resulting from the completion of the canal through Circleville, exceeded all expectations.

The Protectionists, who had prophesied that all sorts of "pauper labor" would come into the region and take work away from our own people, couldn't make our "Squirrel Hunters" believe anything was wrong with it, when they were being paid, for working on the canal for 26 "dry days of 12 hours each", the sum of 8 dollars.

It was the first such privilege ever offered around here, to get so much money in such a short time. Prices for products of the farm skyrocketed, too. In 1824, the year before the canal was completed, wheat sold for 25c, and corn had no market at all, except to those making whiskey, who paid 6c per bushel.

AFTER THE canal was in operation, prices for every kind of produce jumped as much as 200 percent and the demand was terrific—corn sold at 40 to 50 cents and wheat brought from 75 cents to a dollar a bushel. With the high prices paid for the farmers' crops and the 15 million dollars the State had disbursed in Ohio for day labor in the construction of the canal, times here really boomed.

But as always happens—even today—somebody got hurt. Our home manufacturers really took a beating. Peddlers came from the East into this country, like squirrels at moving time, offering for sale at unheard of prices, the many things our local people were making, as well as the "flub-dubs" the folks in the East had been used to.

Our wheelwrights, the reelwrights, the makers of looms, reeds, flyers, hackles, plows and nails were virtually put out of business on account of the canal.

No longer was it necessary when the people wanted a new hat, to go to the "hat shop" and have their heads measured with a tape-line, and the head be diagrammed for contour and wait until their new "lid" was made—"store hats" were plentiful, at half the price.

One of the shrewdest of the traveling merchants who came into this community, sold a clock to about every land owner in our County for 60 dollars, and gave the buyer a year to pay for it, taking their note, bearing 6 per cent interest—the timepieces cost the New England peddler, two dollars and fifty cents at the factory.

Such deals as this were common and they aroused so much resentment that action was requested of legislative bodies to prevent itinerant peddlers from traveling over the country, selling articles of very little value at high prices and even counterfeits of things for home use. One community really raised a rumpus, when it was discovered that the people had been buncoed by a Connecticut shyster, into buying nutmegs made of wood.

DO YOU KNOW that's how the State of Connecticut came to be called the "Nutmeg State"? Most of the peddlers of wooden nutmegs were from that State.

Besides the "house-to-house" salesmen, the canal trade gave interest and entertainment to hundreds of our early citizens. In every village, most every night, could be found quite a crowd, gathered about a street "hawker" or a "Medicine Man."

These fellows made a killing, selling cheap whiskey, its identity well concealed with yards and flappings, which was guaranteed as a cure for every conceivable ailment, real or imaginary. We would be interested to know just how many dollars these traveling "doctors" wheedled from those they made believe they were infested with "tapeworms" or some other form of nematode.

Those fellows had their spels down pat. You don't see these old-time pitchmen any more, but fortunately some of their strictly Americana patter has been preserved—let's look at one.

"Gentlemen!—your eyes would bug out if I were to tell only a mite of what my unparalleled soap will do. It's magical, radical, tragical. Cleans spots or it will hide spots, will brighten colors or wipe out colors. It's healing, restores beauty and promotes cheerfulness and character of face and form. Taken by emulsion, internally, it cures hiccups or tongue-tiedness. "It will curl straight hair or will take the kind out of curly hair. Like it cleans spots from your coats and your breeches, it will make pure your conscience and your character. Never again will the opportunity come, to buy for one thin dime, one-tenth of a dollar, this incomparable, inimitable, infallible, never-failing all-healing, spot removing, beauty-restoring article. Yes sir—only a dime a cake, this little chunk of magic—what miracles it do's perform!"

We'll bet there are many who recall some of these old-time showmen—keen-eyed, full-whiskered, sanctified-looking, glib-talking—doing a whale of a business at the corner of Court and Main.

Coast Guard Ship Busy In Ice Jams

TOLEDO (U)—Ice jams have kept the Coast Guard cutter Tupelo busy near the Toledo Harbor light in Lake Erie and in the Detroit River.

Ice piled up northeast of the harbor light and trapped the Detroit-bound freighter Diamond Alkali. The Tupelo sailed out to rescue her Sunday, but the Canadian tug Atomic got there first and freed the freighter.
